In Appreciation

As we are about to go our separate ways, we, the Class of 1962, compile this yearbook to cherish the ideals and activities of St. Joseph High School and to preserve for the future the memories of this eventful year.

To show our appreciation for these four years, we present this Josemont to YOU—to our priests who have guided us spiritually throughout our high-school days; to our parents who are largely responsible for our treasured Catholic education; to the Sisters of Notre Dame whose untiring efforts in our behalf are deeply appreciated; to the entire faculty for the many hours spent in helping us attain our "passport" to the future; to our friends who gave us the support so vital in our many activities.

Mere words are somewhat inadequate to express our sincerest feelings of gratitude to our principal, Father Lichtle, for his self-less service and for his constant, dedicated interest in our welfare.

To all who have made our Catholic education possible, we wish to say "thank you."

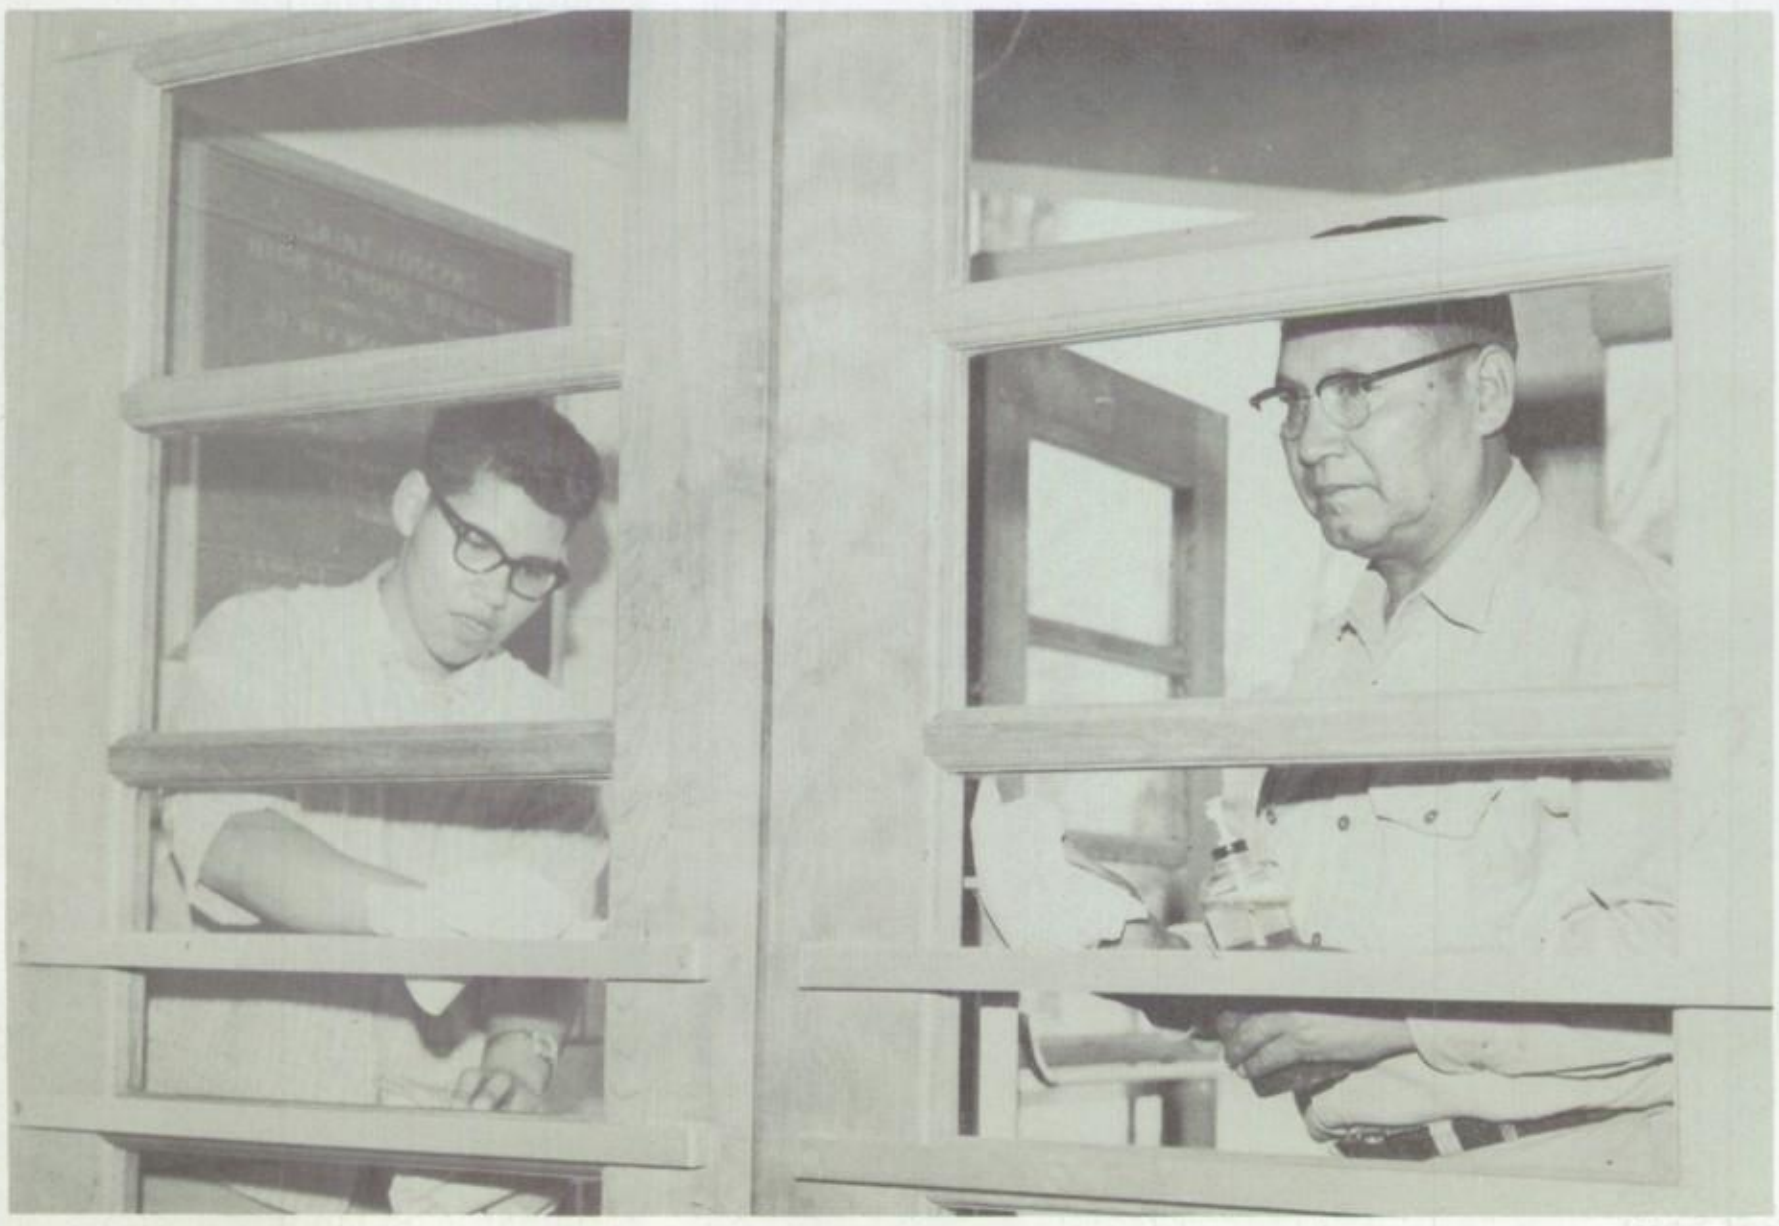
Mrs. Florence Daoust and a small group of her service crew take a well-deserved break from their daily schedule of preparing tasty, enriching food for the students at St. Joseph's cafeteria.

At Our Service

Herman and Mr. Balbino Cisneros, SJH's able maintenance men, wash and polish windows as part of their huge job of caring for St. Joseph's High School.



Together through Religion

Sunshine streaming through stained glass windows . . . students attending daily Mass . . . fingering of rosaries and turning pages of Missals . . . willing silence of retreat days . . . bowed heads and humble hearts . . . spending for Christ's poor amid the colorful atmosphere of the Mission Carnival . . . learning about Christian living through classroom instruction — students of SJH fashion the pattern of their lives through LIVING their religion.

Senior Acolytes

One hundred and thirty-two years! Our senior acolytes are justifiably proud of their combined 132 years of service at the altar.

Row 2: Chester Luc, Thomas Kashmer, David Daubel, Theodore Widman, John Missig.

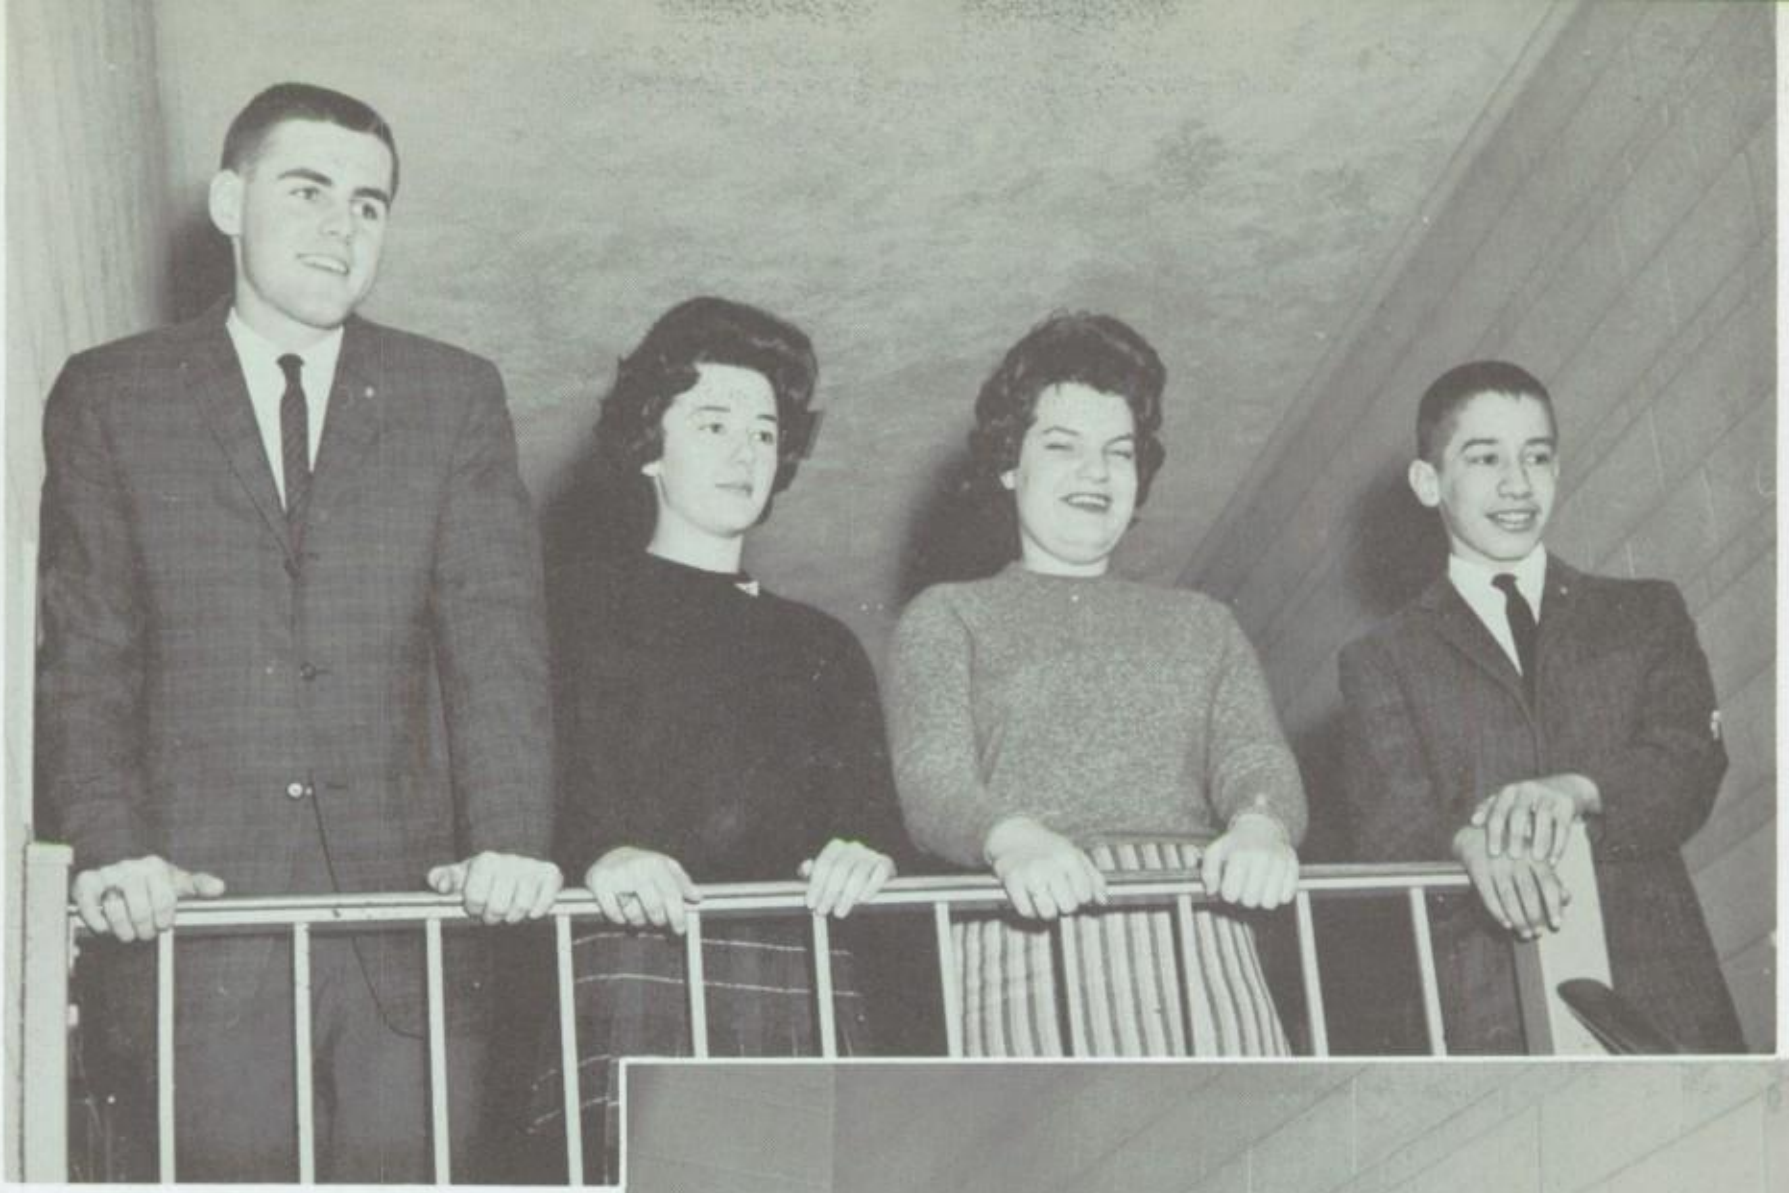
Student Organists

Preparing the music for daily Mass are our accomplished organists: Judith Fisher, Judith Brady, and Jeannine Schwinger.



Caught by the camera were these capable St. Joseph CYO officers: Patrick Riley, president; Amelia Kanan, vice-president; Judy Lauer, secretary; and Robert Reineck, treasurer.

CYO Officers

While enroute to their monthly meeting, Sacred Heart CYO officers stop to pose for the cameraman. (top to bottom) Judy Fisher, Ronald Kerr, Michael Whittaker, Joan Kirwen, Joan Ziebold, Michael Molyet.

Mission Carnival

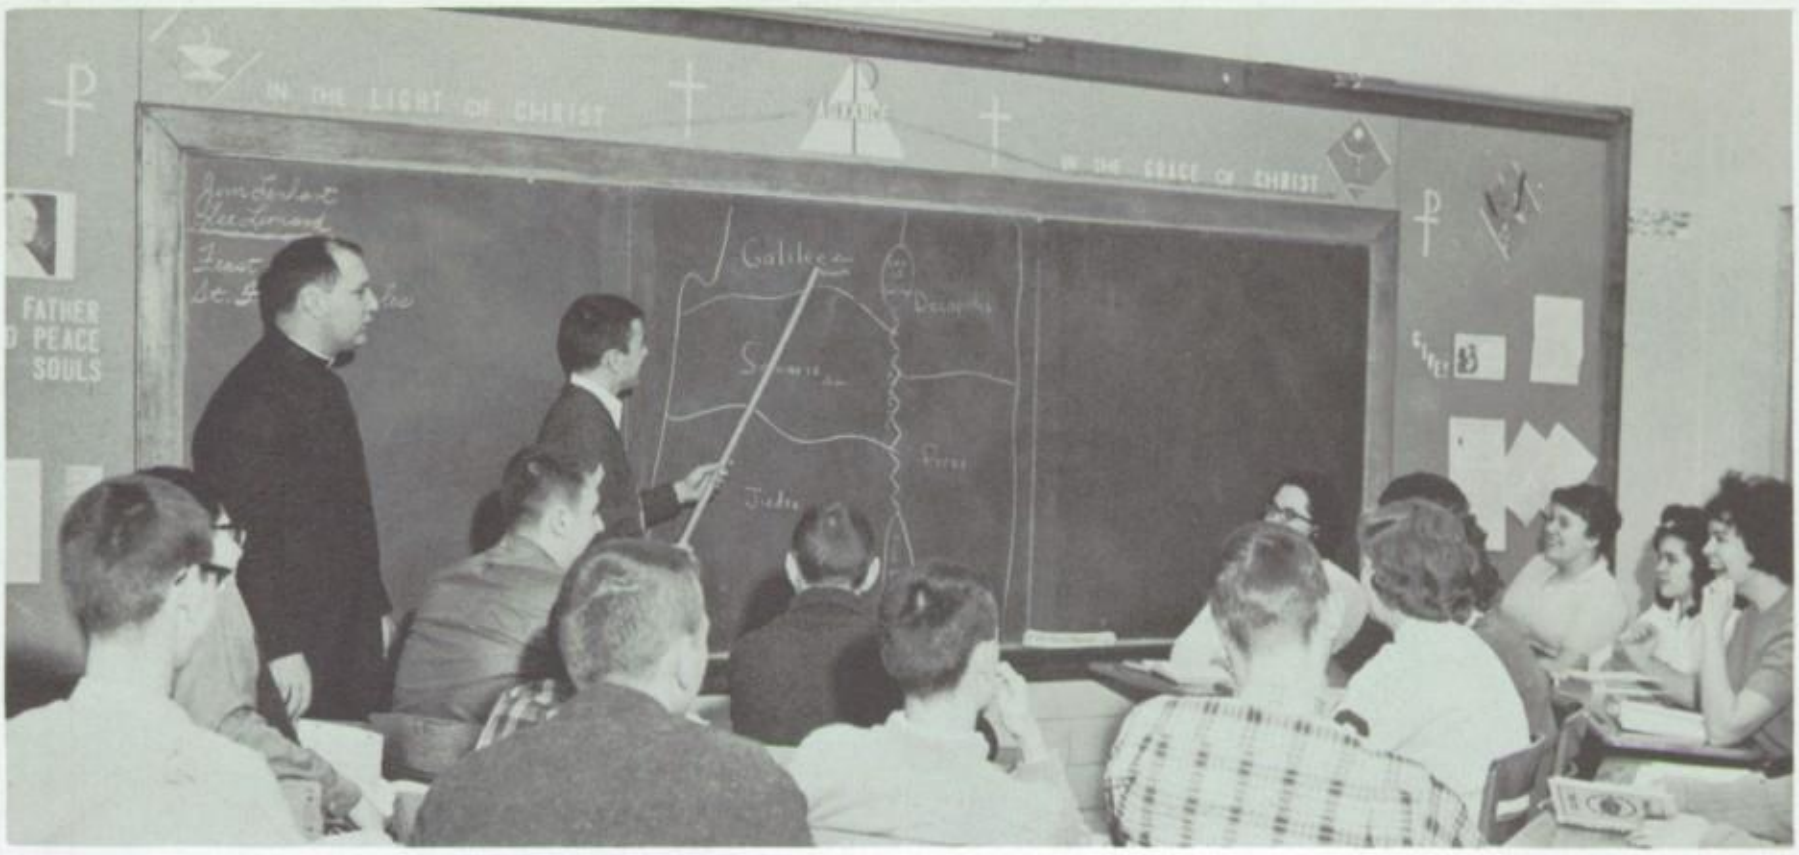
Luella VanAman, secretary, points to the carnival results as fellow officers James Lauer, president; Richard Maier, vice-president; and Mary Wolf, treasurer, look on with pride at their accomplishments.

No wonder the Mission Carnival was a success! These smiling students show their generosity as they travel from booth to booth spending their money to aid some far-away mission country.

In the Classroom

There's evidently a humorous discussion on emotions and will in progress in Father Loeffler's sophomore religion class.

"What did you get?" anxiously inquire the freshman boys of one another as Father Reinhart returns their test papers.



Are you looking for a place to build? Contact any of Father Lichtle's junior religion students for first-hand information about the journeys of Christ through Palestine.

Father Swiatecki seems to be cornered by his freshman religion class.

Discussing the problems now faced by young adults, the freshmen find new horizons in Father Fleck's religion class.

May Crowning

Mid fragrant blossoms and the strains of Marian melodies, May Queen Marilyn Binsack, pays tribute to our heavenly Mother.

Attendants to the May Queen were Ann Horvath, Patricia Tischler, Mary Ellen Griffin, crownbearer James Szakovitz, Sharon Reardon, Nancy Reardon, Margaret Dickman.

Retreat

Opening gateways of grace to spiritual renewal, the days of retreat, March 21, 22, and 23 were especially fruitful for the students of St. Joseph High School. Holy Mass, reception of the Sacraments, conferences, spiritual reading, and individual counselling comprised the daily schedule. The Reverend T.F. Shea, S.J., and the Reverend R. J. Lab, S.J., acted as retreat masters.

These grateful students discuss the highlights of the retreat with Father Shea before they depart to put into practice what they have learned.

Father Lab interrupts his busy schedule to check who is next on his conference list.

Together in Class

Delving into the realms of knowledge . . . bouting with clicking typewriters, trusty slide rules, revolving globes, bubbling test tubes, and tired textbooks . . . ever cramming for daily quizzes . . . searching for pen and paper . . . making that mad rush before last bell . . . sharing information through communication of ideas — students of SJH enrich the present and fashion their future.

It must be book-report time, for these eager freshmen are doing some last-minute searching for that right book.

English

These senior students point out the various phases of English IV. On the agenda are book reports, theme writing, the exploring of prose and poetry, and term papers.

Speech students are awake even at 9 a.m. when Nancy Reardon takes the podium. (Say Nancy, what about the rule of keeping those eyes roaming?)

Languages

Smiling freshmen proudly display their decorative Latin I notebooks, a project on which they have spent many long hours.

Friends, Romans, and students! Who says Latin doesn't live today?

Putting into practice an interesting technique, Spanish II students use records to perfect their pronunciation.

In hope of a "Bon Voyage" someday, these French II students sing out in typical French glee.

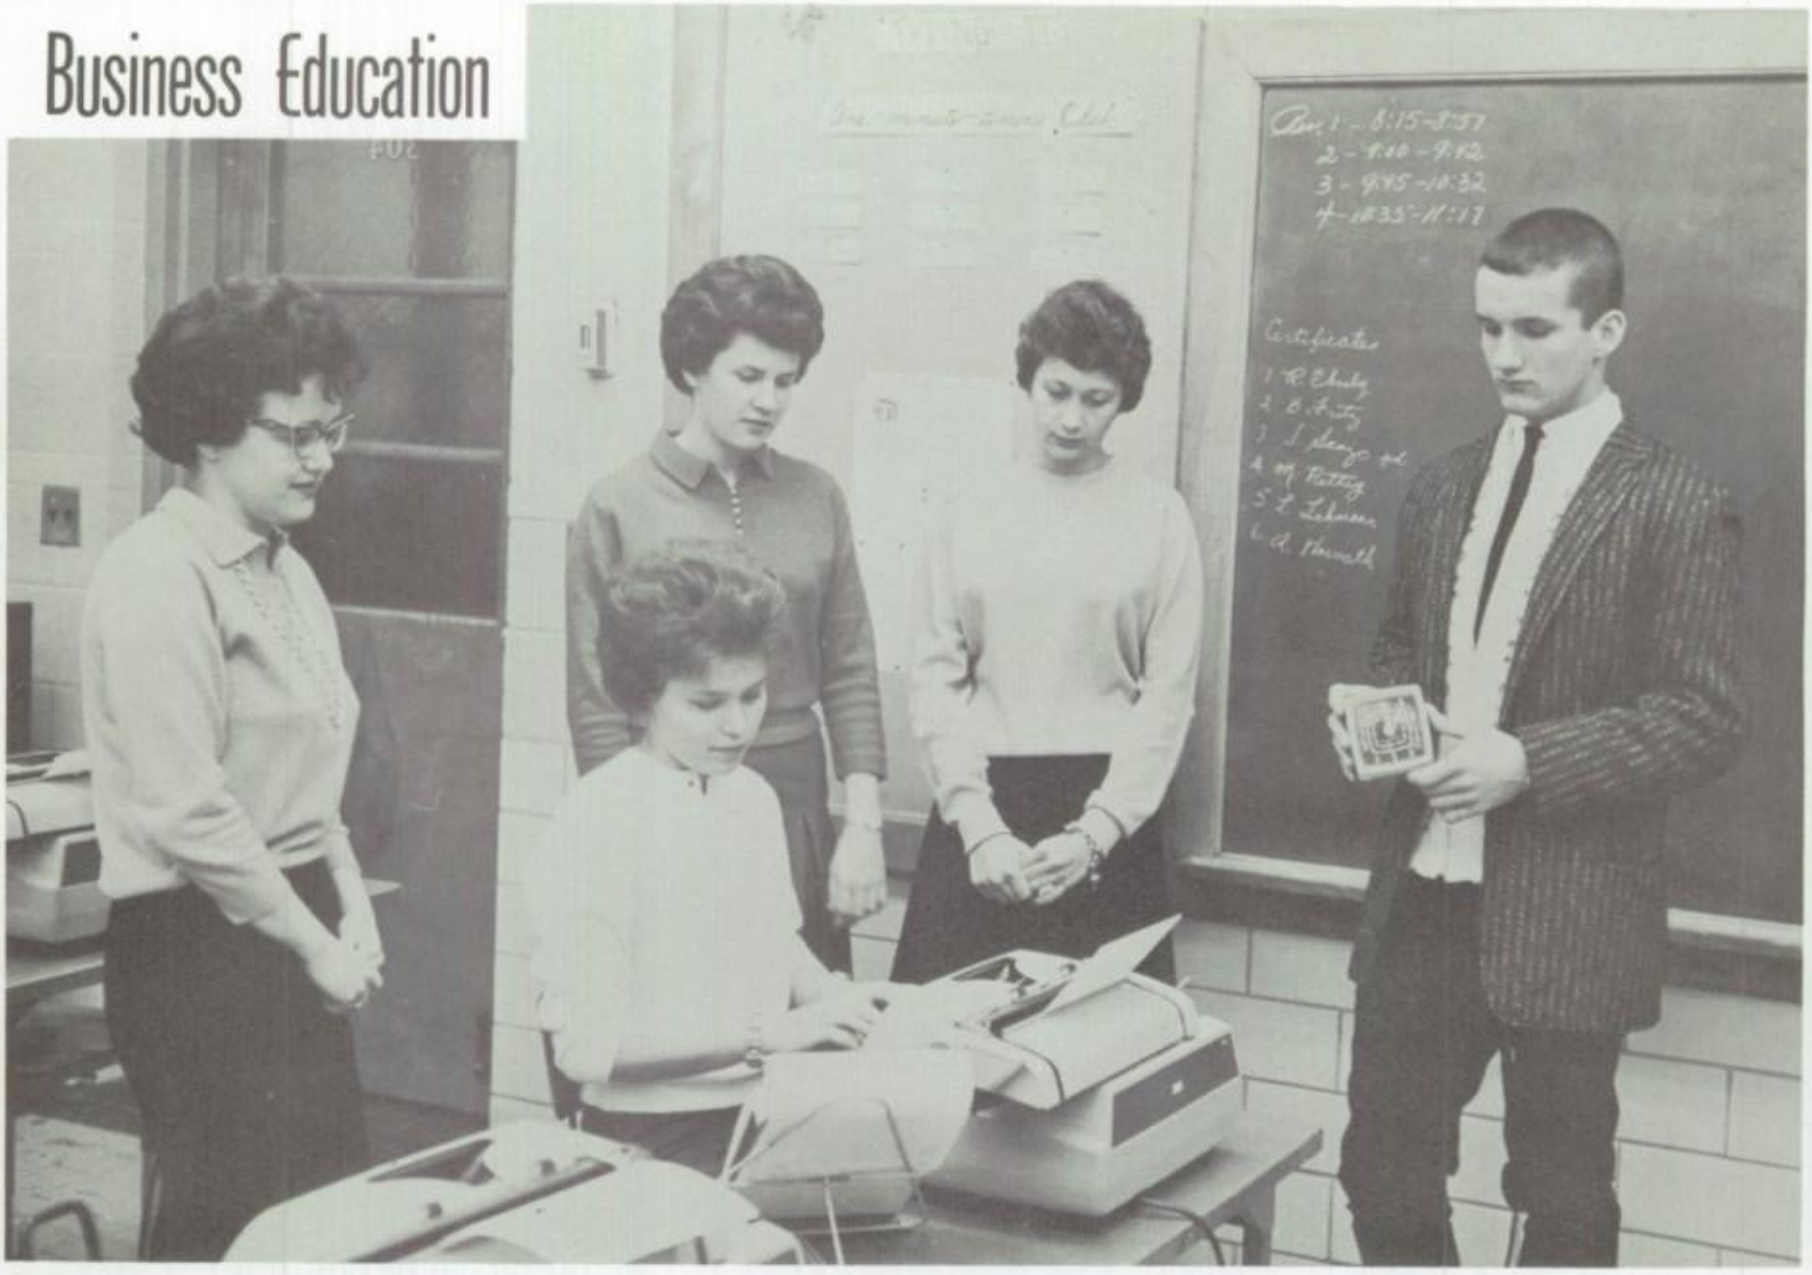
History

Have you had your group discussion today? American history students give Mrs. Smith a break as they take over for a buzz session.

Civics

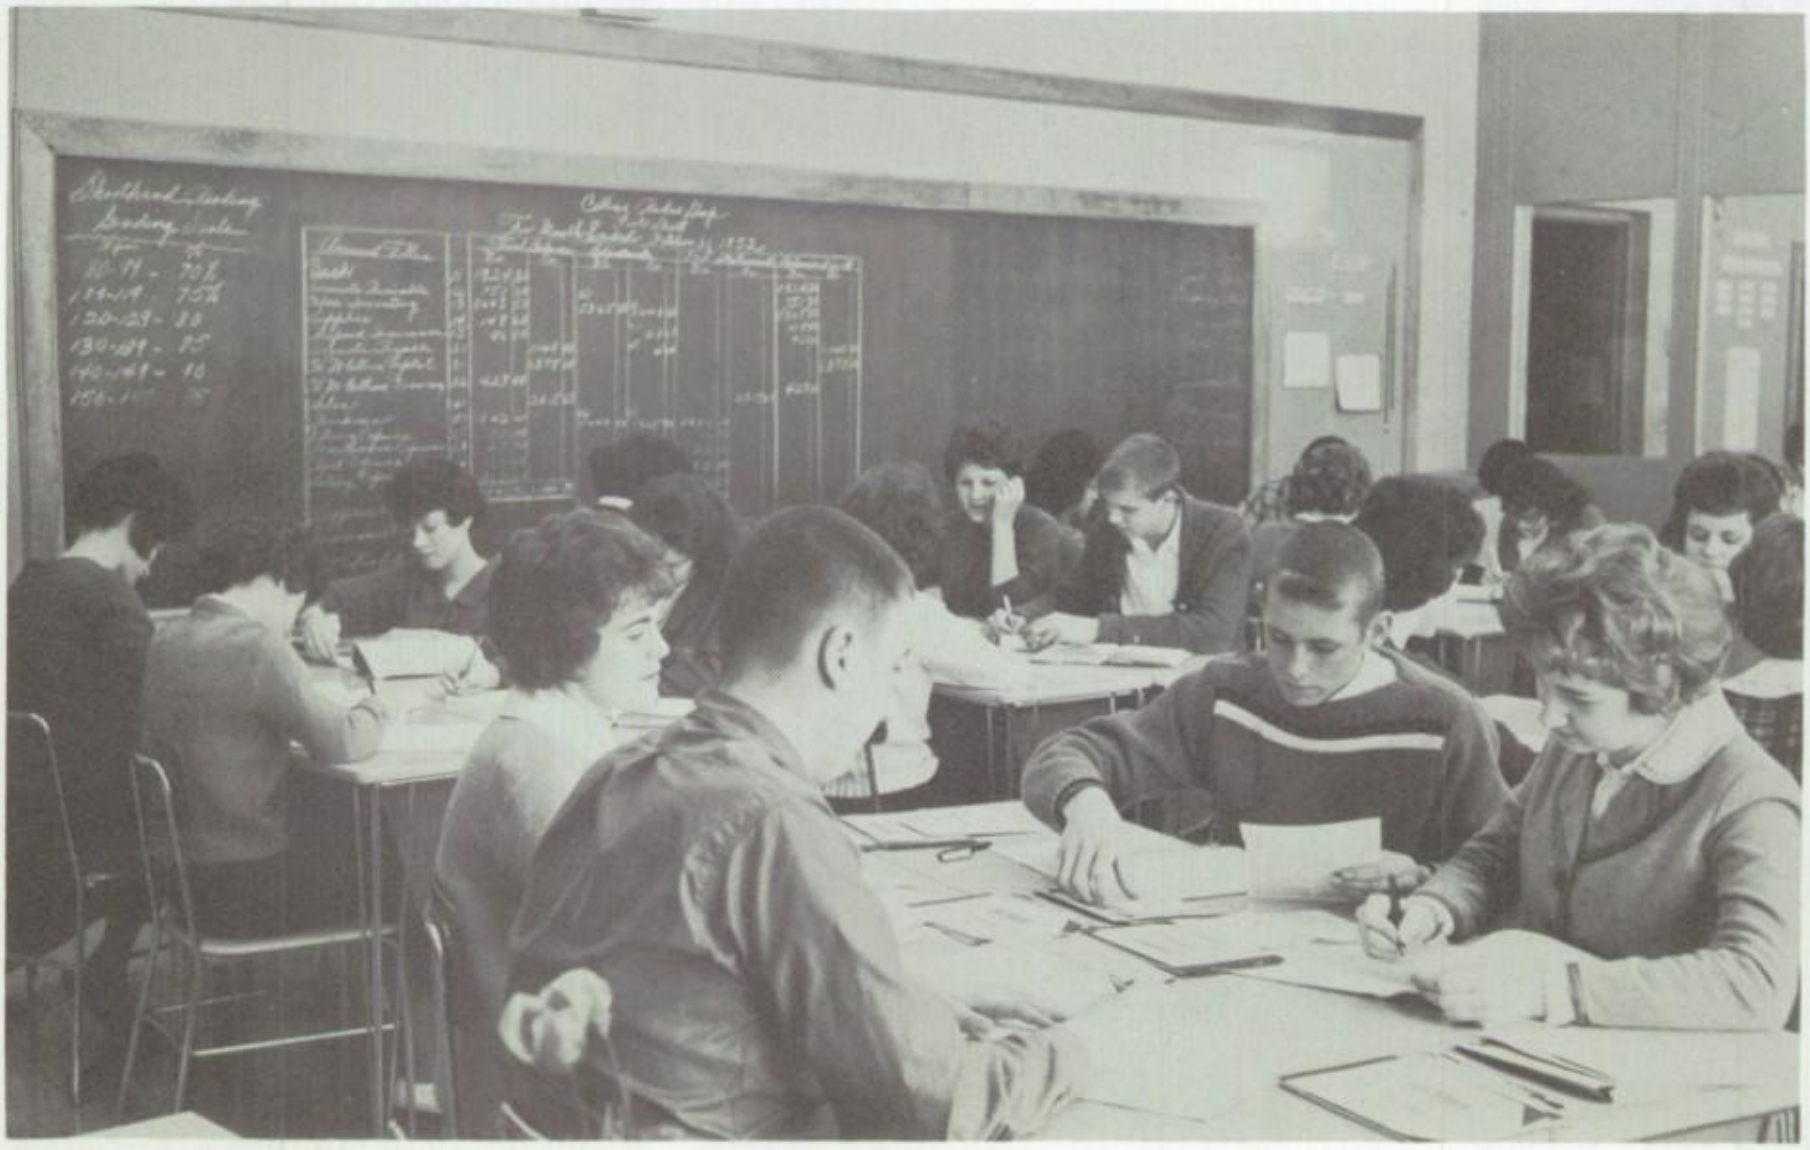
"It's a man's world," in the opinion of these senior politicians as they attempt to solve world problems in their civics class.

Business Education



Linda Lehmann's race with time! With Ronald Eberly keeping close watch, Linda once again "beats the clock" at 90 words per minute.

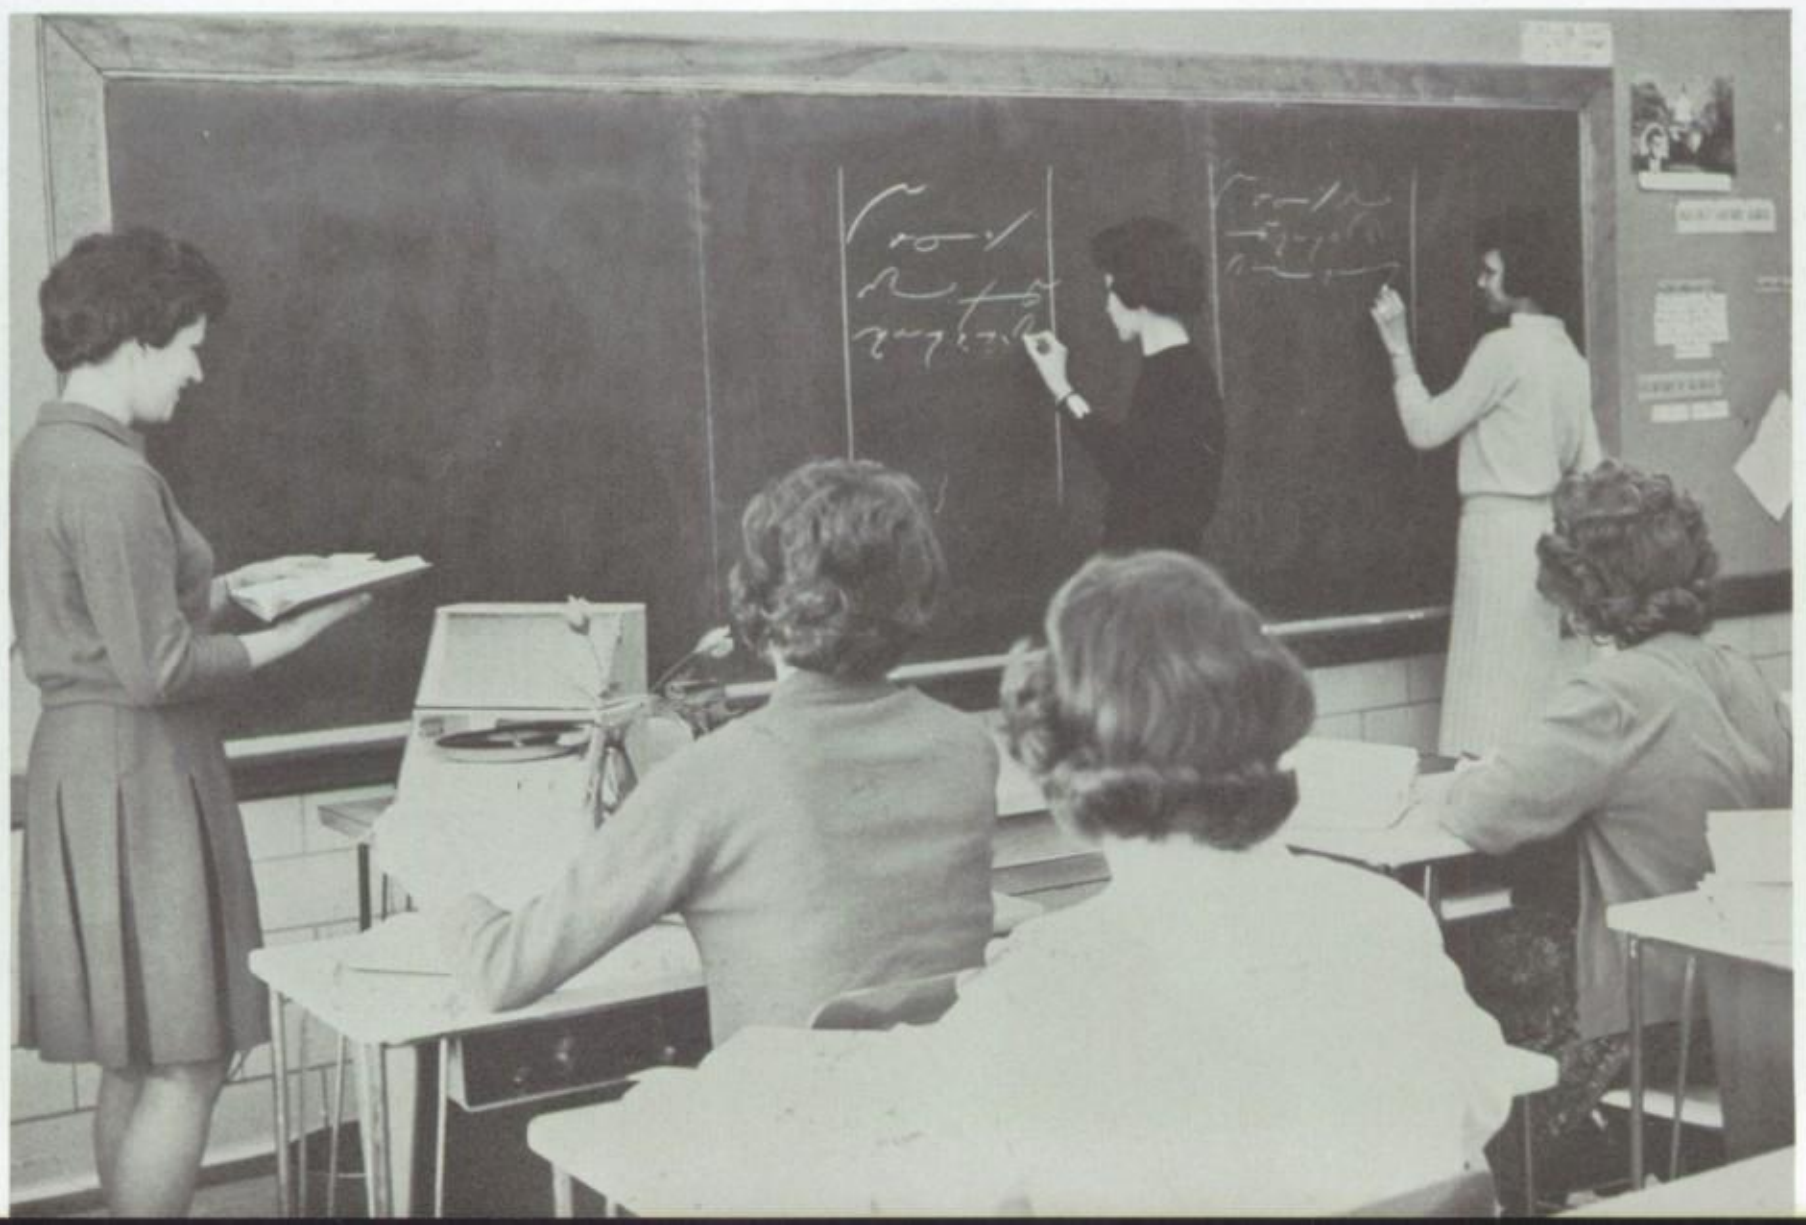
Assets, liabilities, debits, credits, ledgers! New terms never cease and neither does the paper work for these budding bookkeepers.



In office practice the senior girls learn to use all the latest office equipment and techniques in preparation for their future secretarial work. Barbara Hauck and Jean Bor are demonstrating the liquid duplicator.

Busy at filing and quick-method computation are Sharon Reardon and Mary Jane Gabel.

Shorthand I students write along with Jane Mayle's dictation.



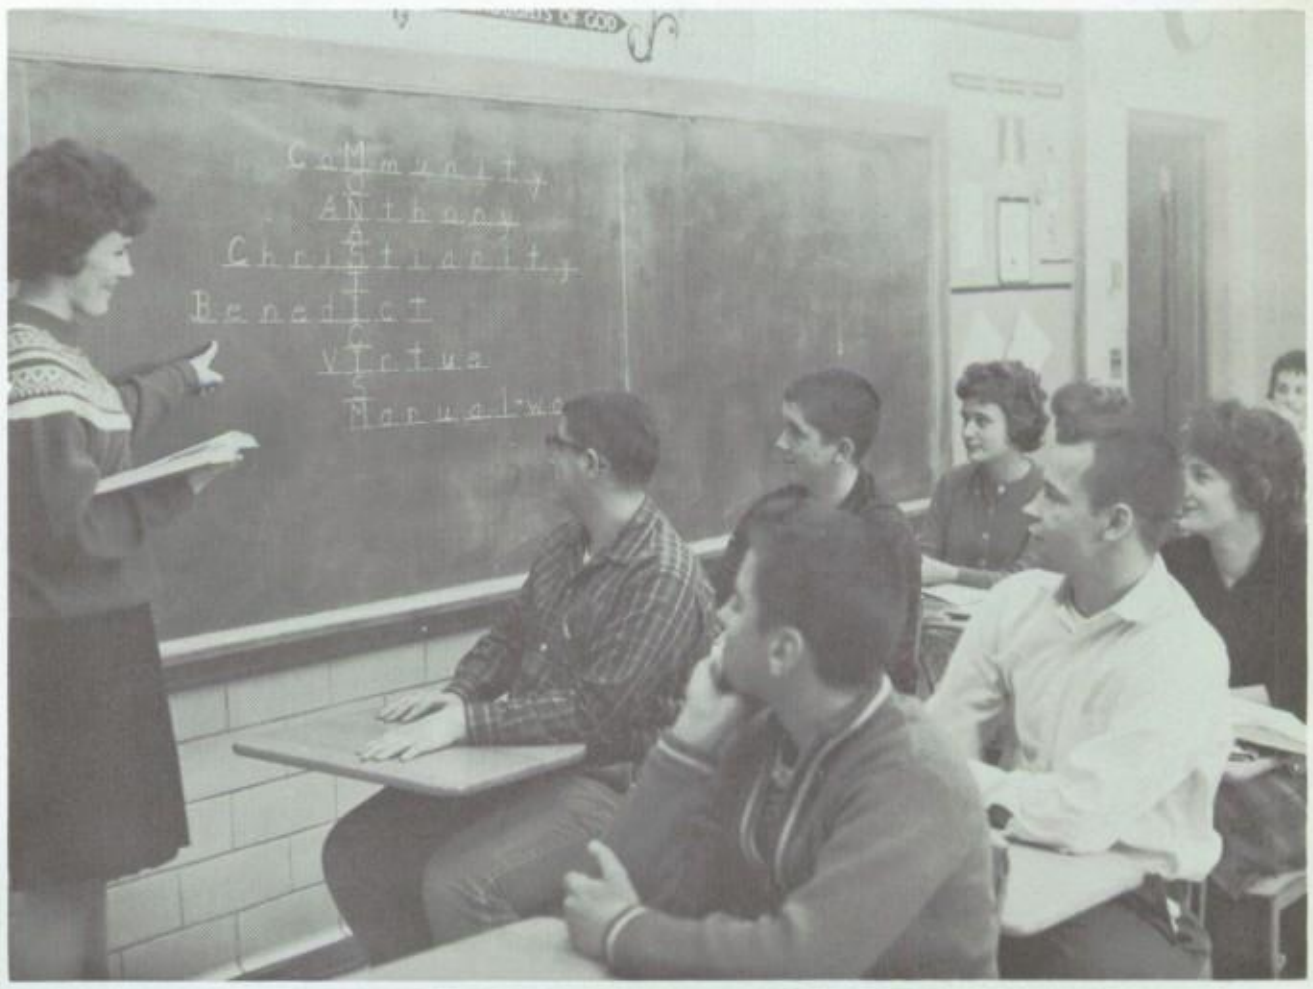
Carol Koebel attempts to break her previous record in Shorthand II as Amy Kanan dictates.

These senior girls in office practice are demonstrating the procedure in turning out the weekly parish bulletin.

Social Studies

Problems of society ala' sociology class! Questions are asked and answered by these senior girls in a class discussion.

"There are more ways than one to learn world history," says Marilyn Binsack as she clarifies the various terms of this acrostic.

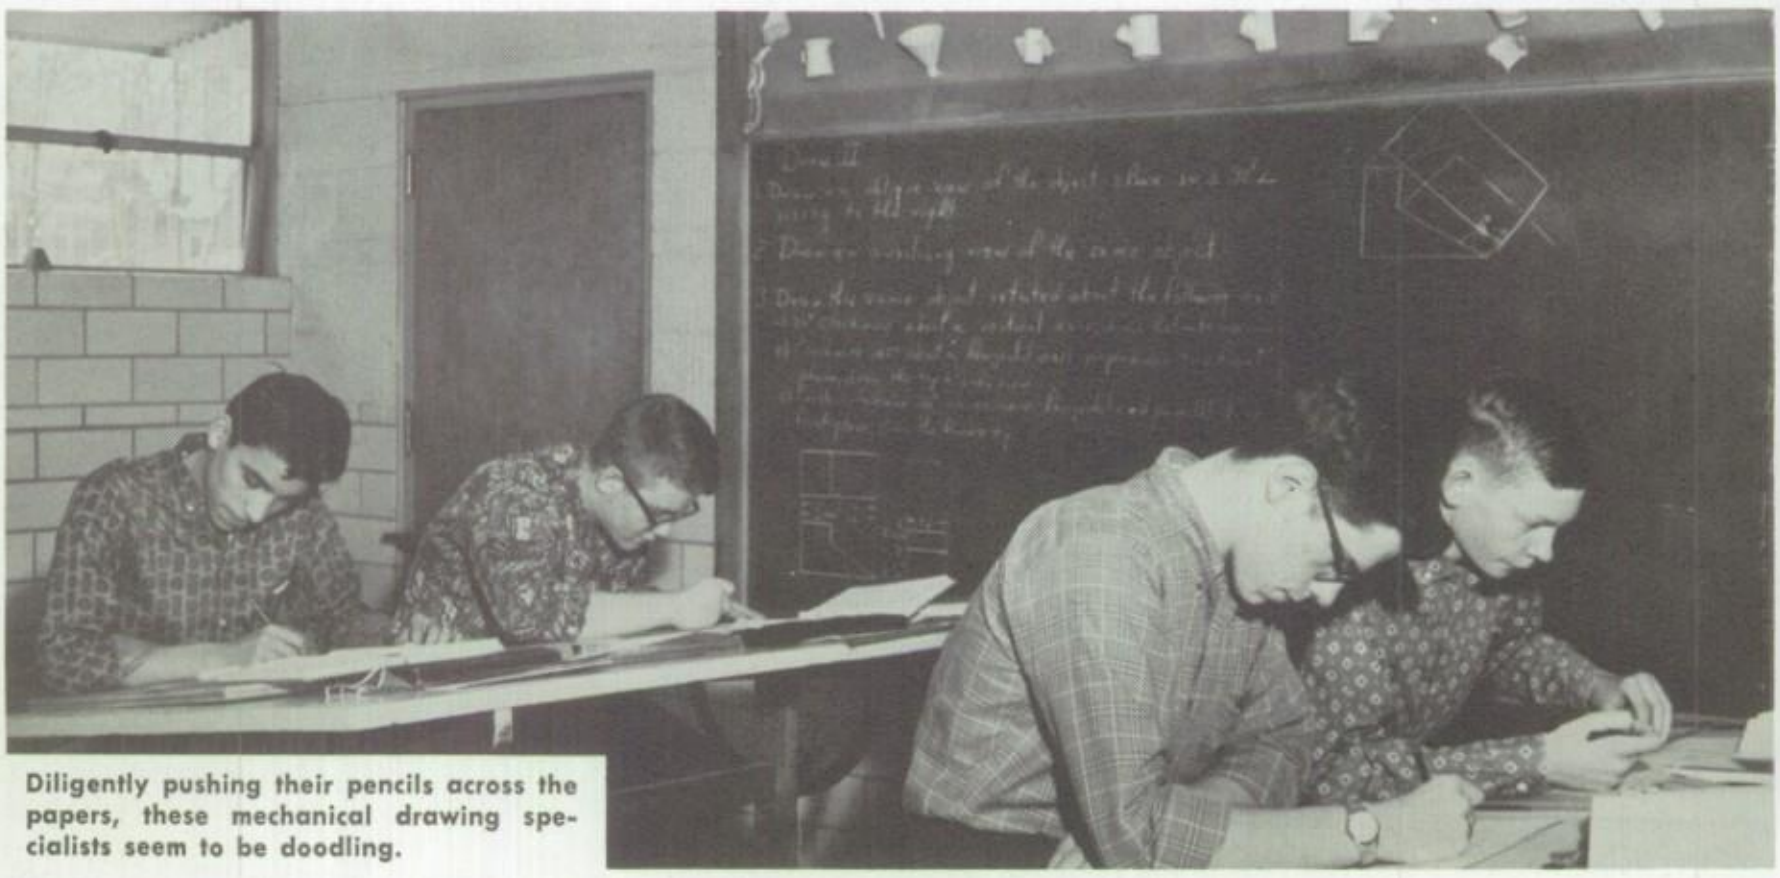


Thomas Weber holds the attention of the economic geography class as he familiarizes his fellow students with one of the various maps used throughout the year.

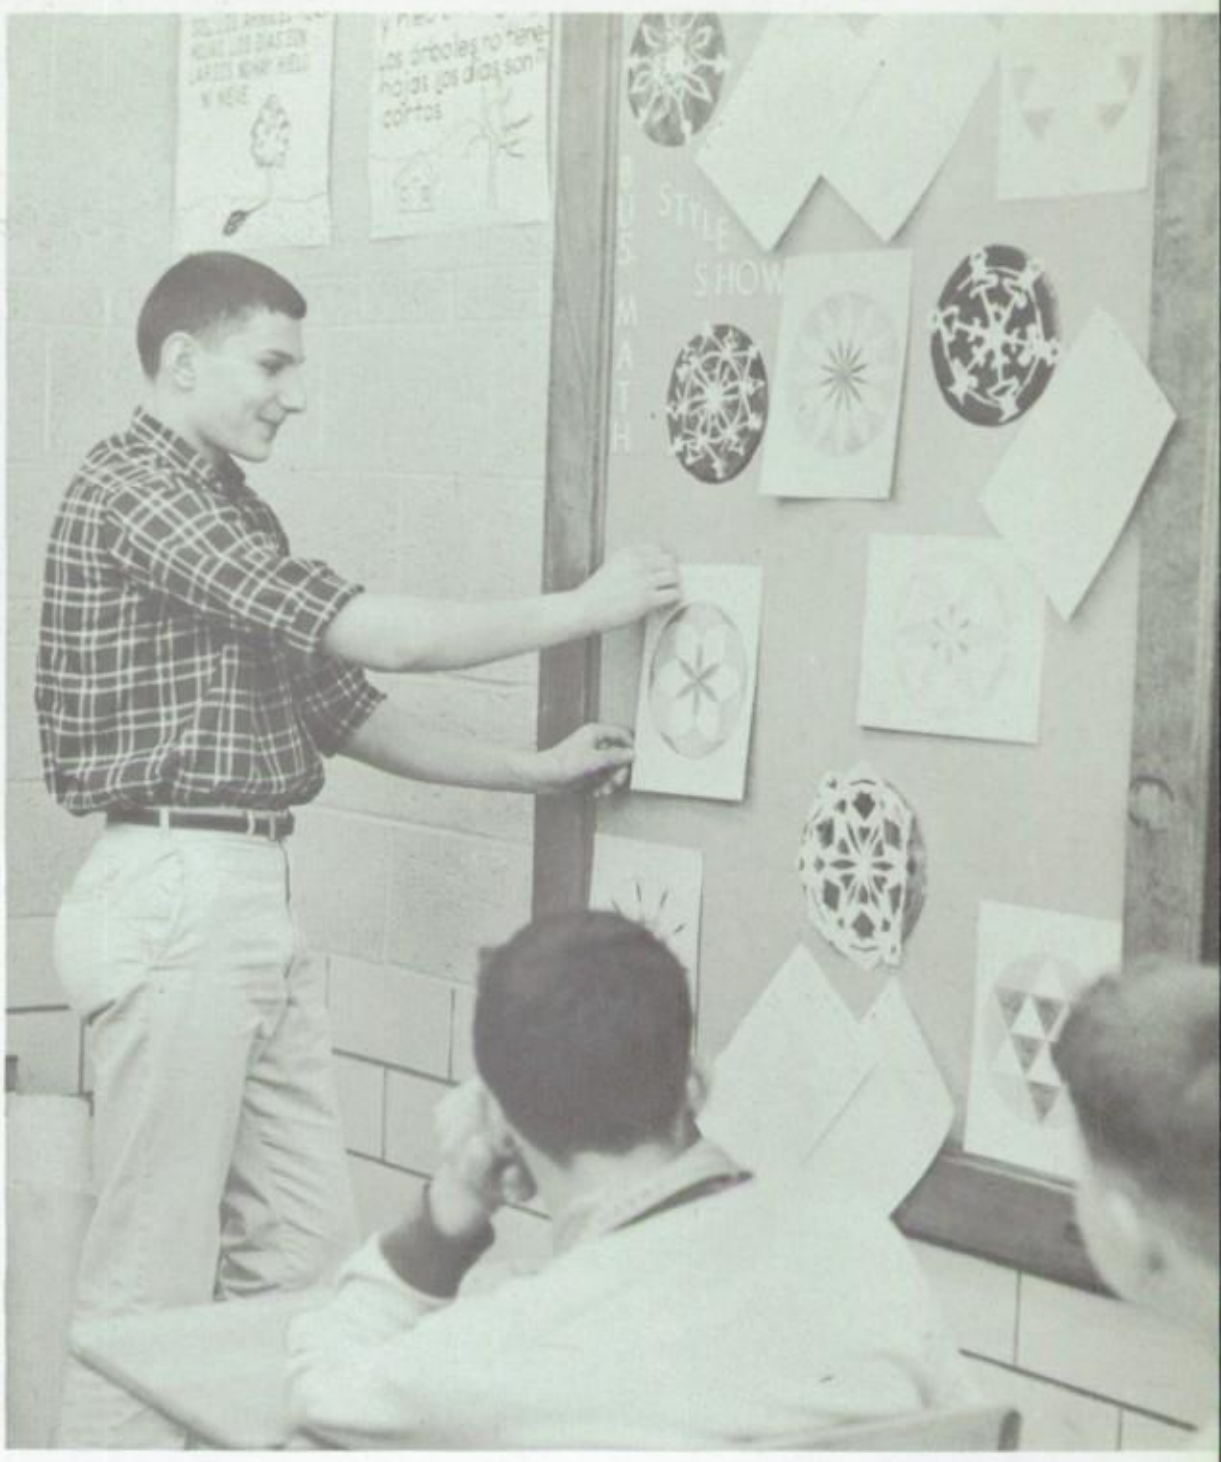
All in favor of TV dinner say "Aye"! Meanwhile back in the home economics class, these students demonstrate the importance of exact measuring techniques.

Home Economics

Brenda Zweily, Patricia Brunner, and Patricia Weber add a finishing touch to their glorified tissue boxes fashioned in home economics class.



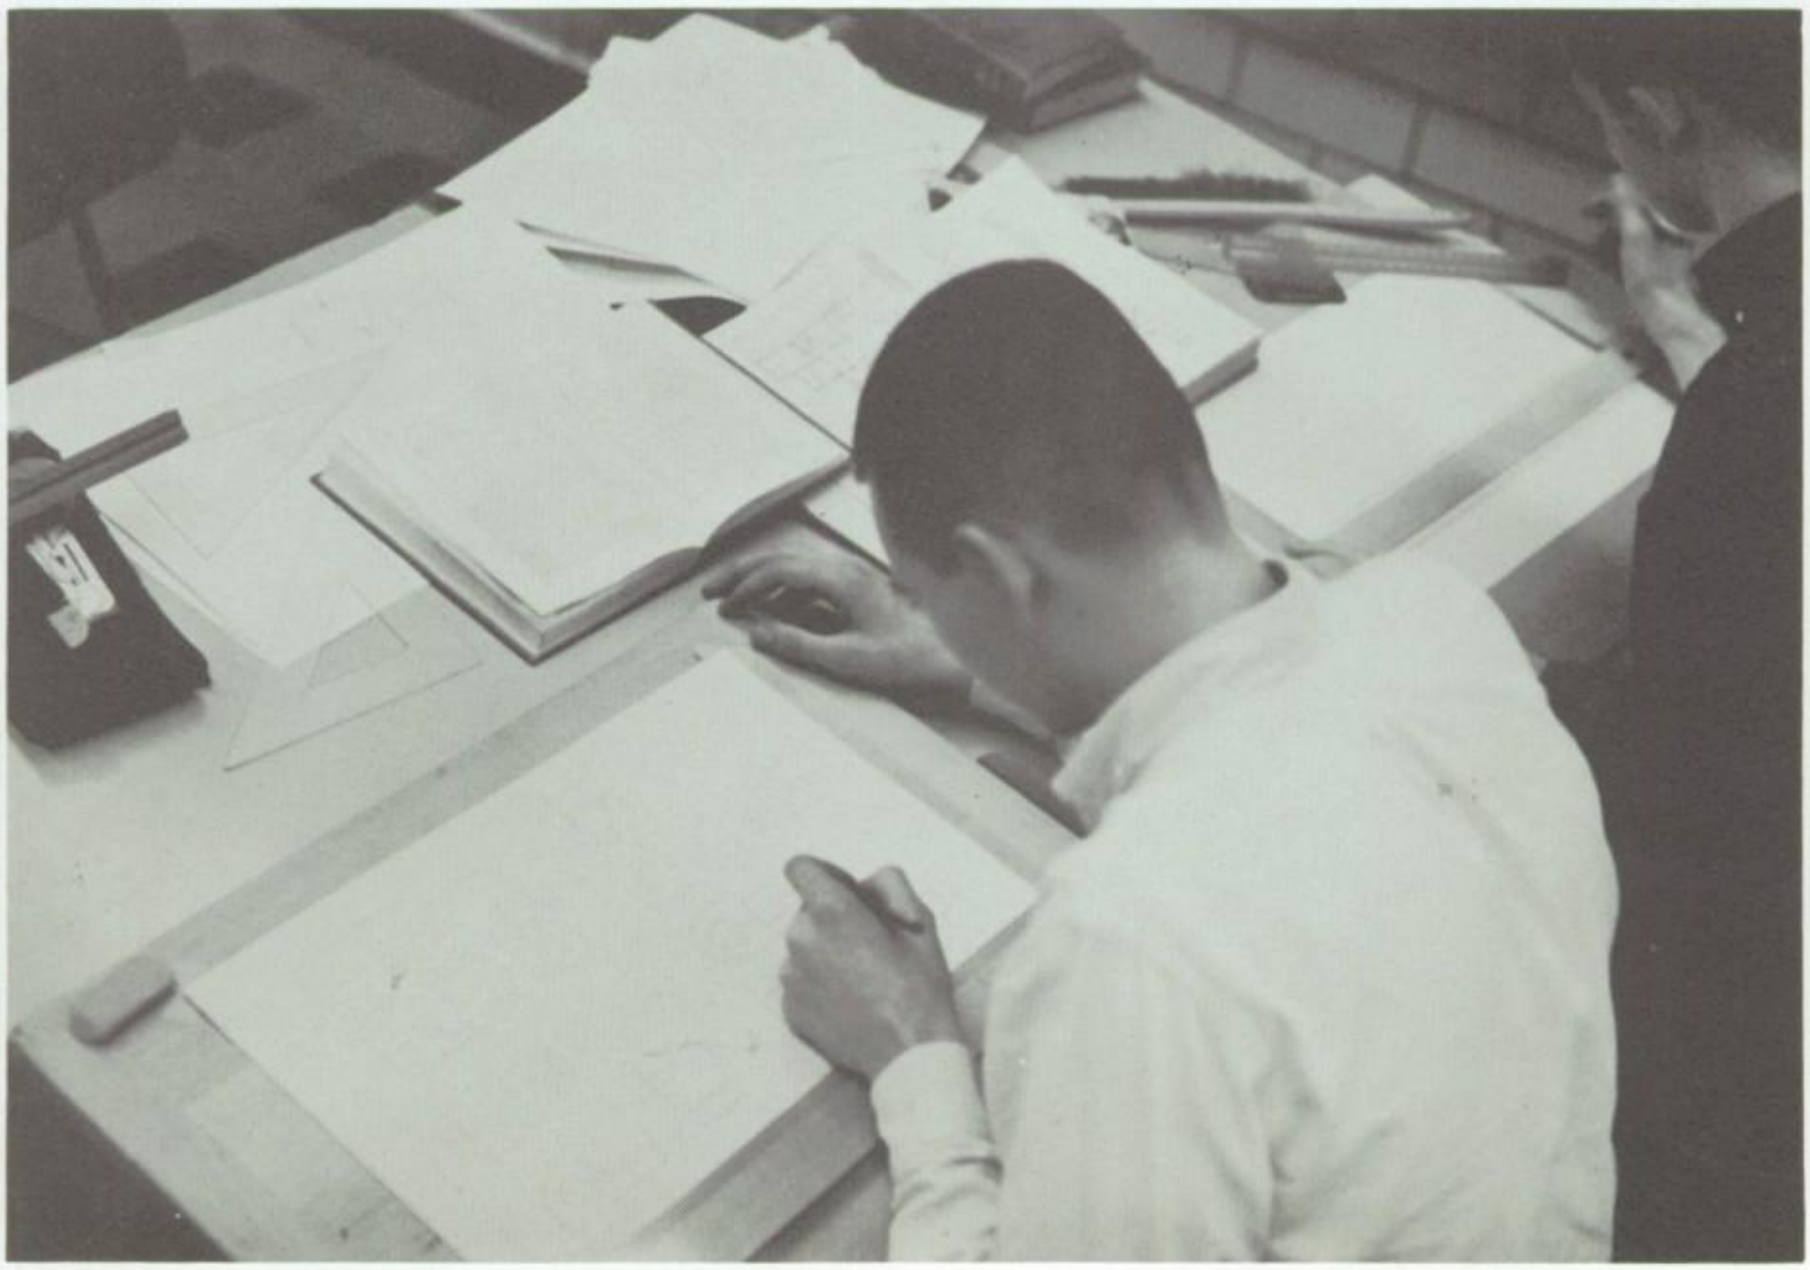
Diligently pushing their pencils across the papers, these mechanical drawing specialists seem to be doodling.

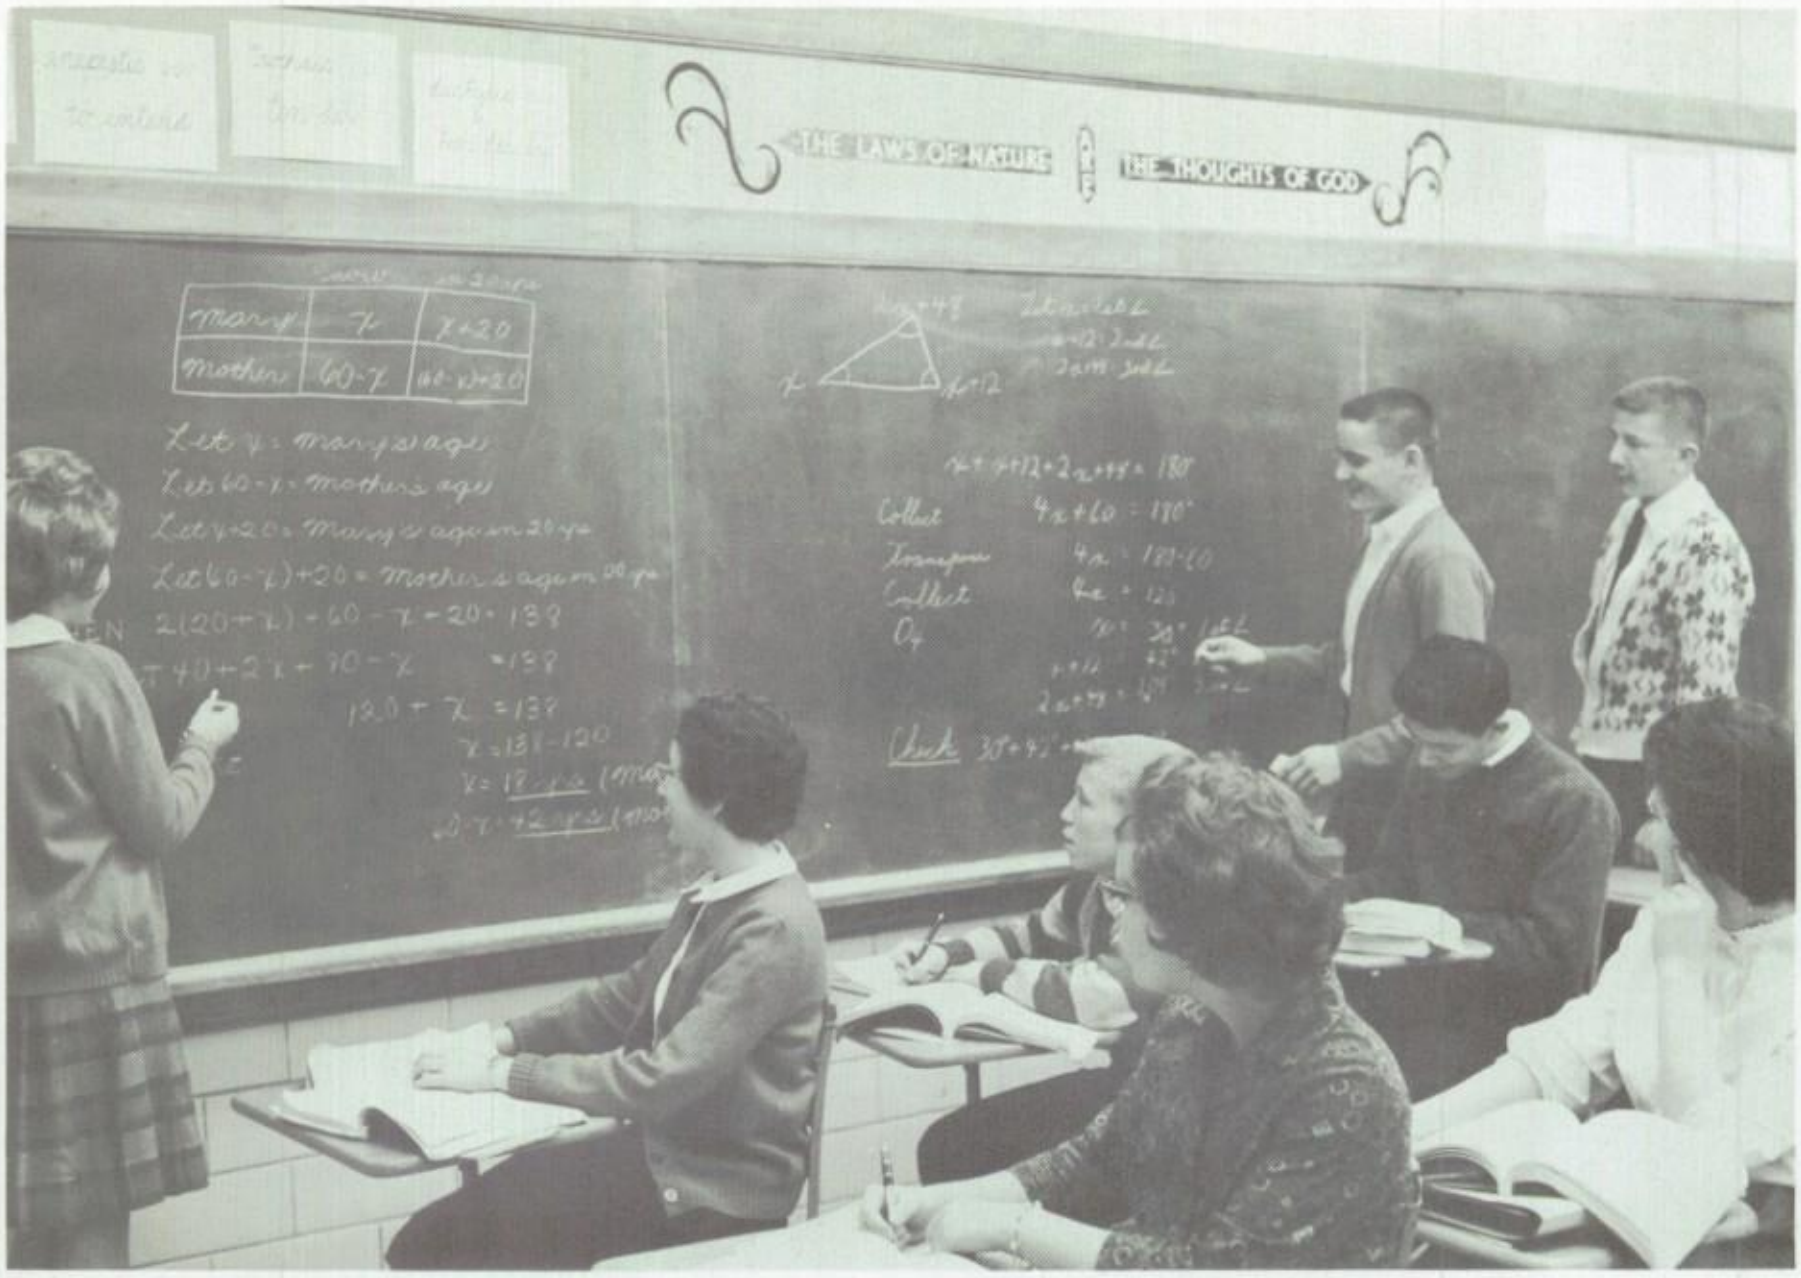


Business math turns style show as the students add their various geometric designs to the attractive bulletin board display.

Mechanical Drawing

This lefty appears to be one of Mr. Kuzma's more accomplished drafters. That plate looks good enough for an "A," John.





THE LAWS OF NATURE
THE THOUGHTS OF GOD
Mary | x | x+20
Mother | 60-x | (60-x)+20
Let x = Mary's age
Let 60-x = Mother's age
Let x+20 = Mary's age in 20 yrs
Let (60-x)+20 = Mother's age in 20 yrs
2(20+x) = 60 - x + 20 = 139
40+2x = 40 - x = 139
120 + x = 139
x = 131 - 120
x = 19

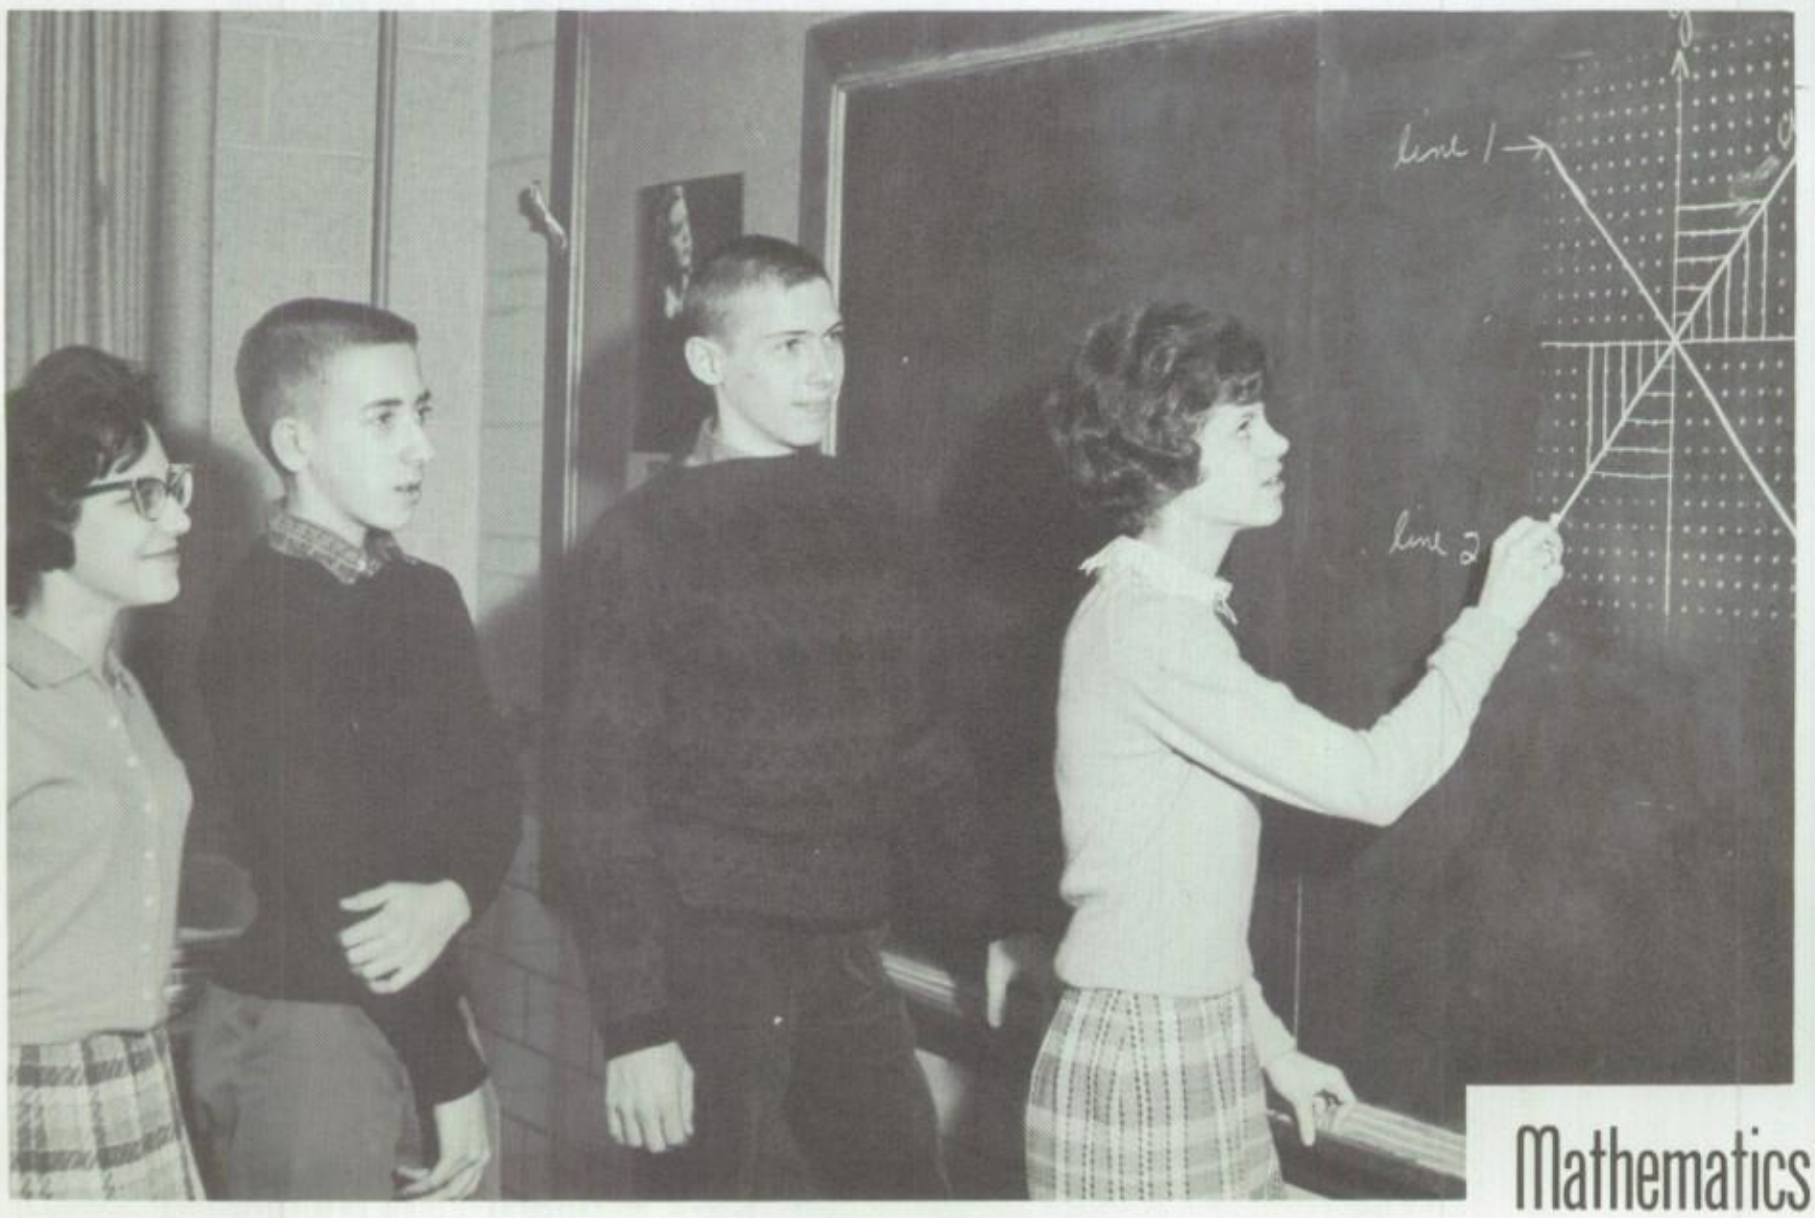
Inquisitive freshmen attempt to solve the many complexities of algebra in their daily workout at the board. "x plus y" is made easier in this step-by-step procedure.

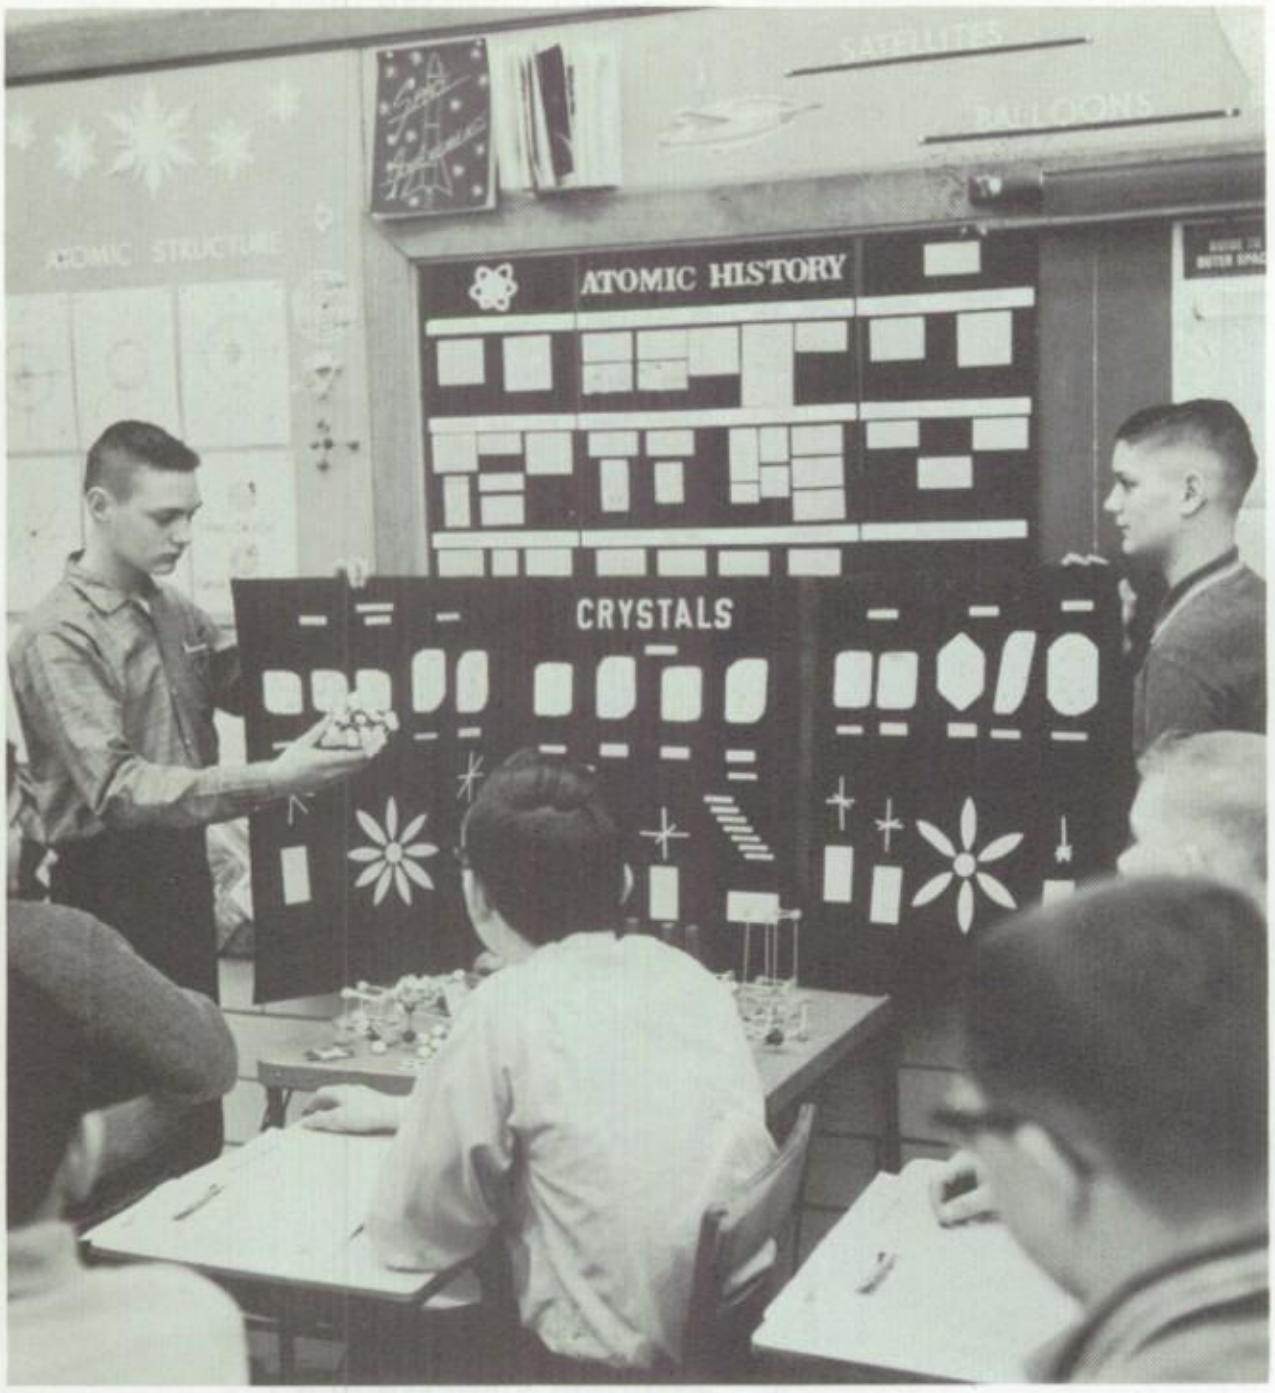
Geometry students never had it so good! Judy Meyers deftly explains all the intricacies of linear equations.



Mathematics

"Brownie's" continual plea, "Any questions?" finally seems to have been answered by these enthusiastic Algebra II students.

All eyes are on Mr. Dorobek? Not camera shy, a few of these students transfer their interest from trigonometry to photography.

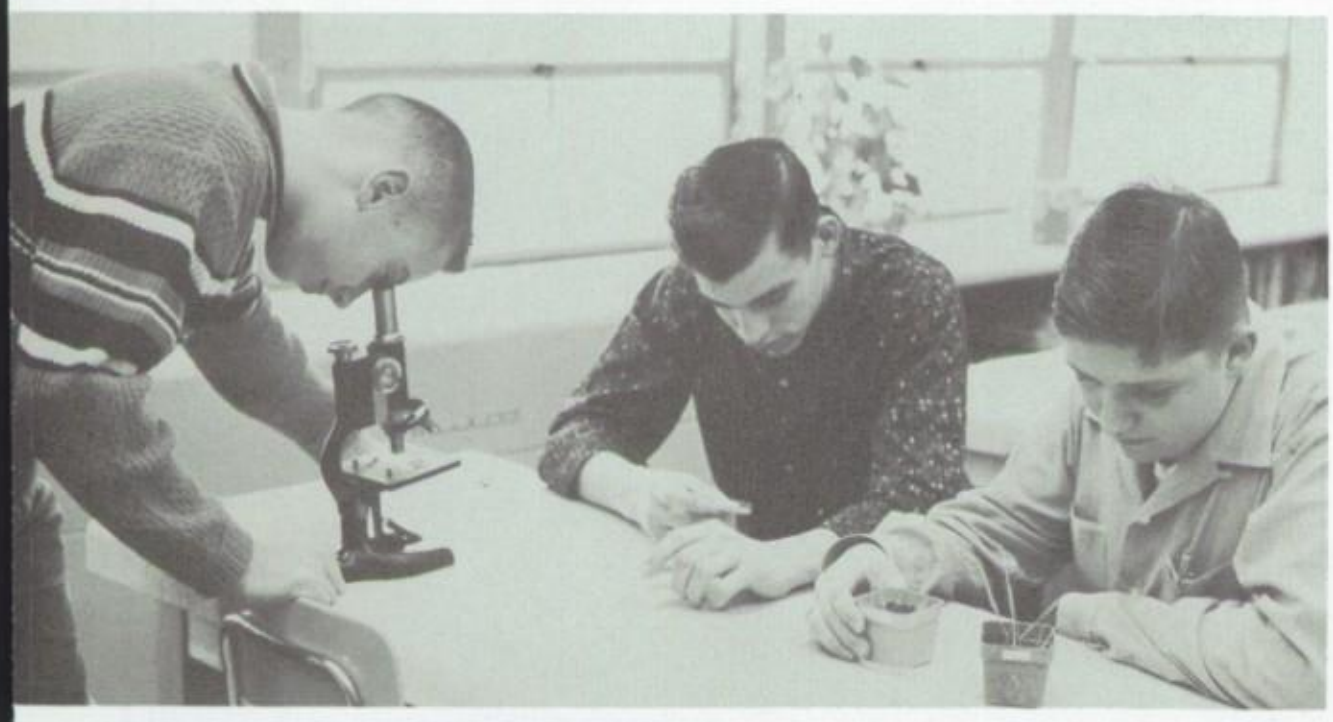


Science

Displaying their projects on atomic history and on crystals, these general science students are evidently on the road to winning the Nobel prize.

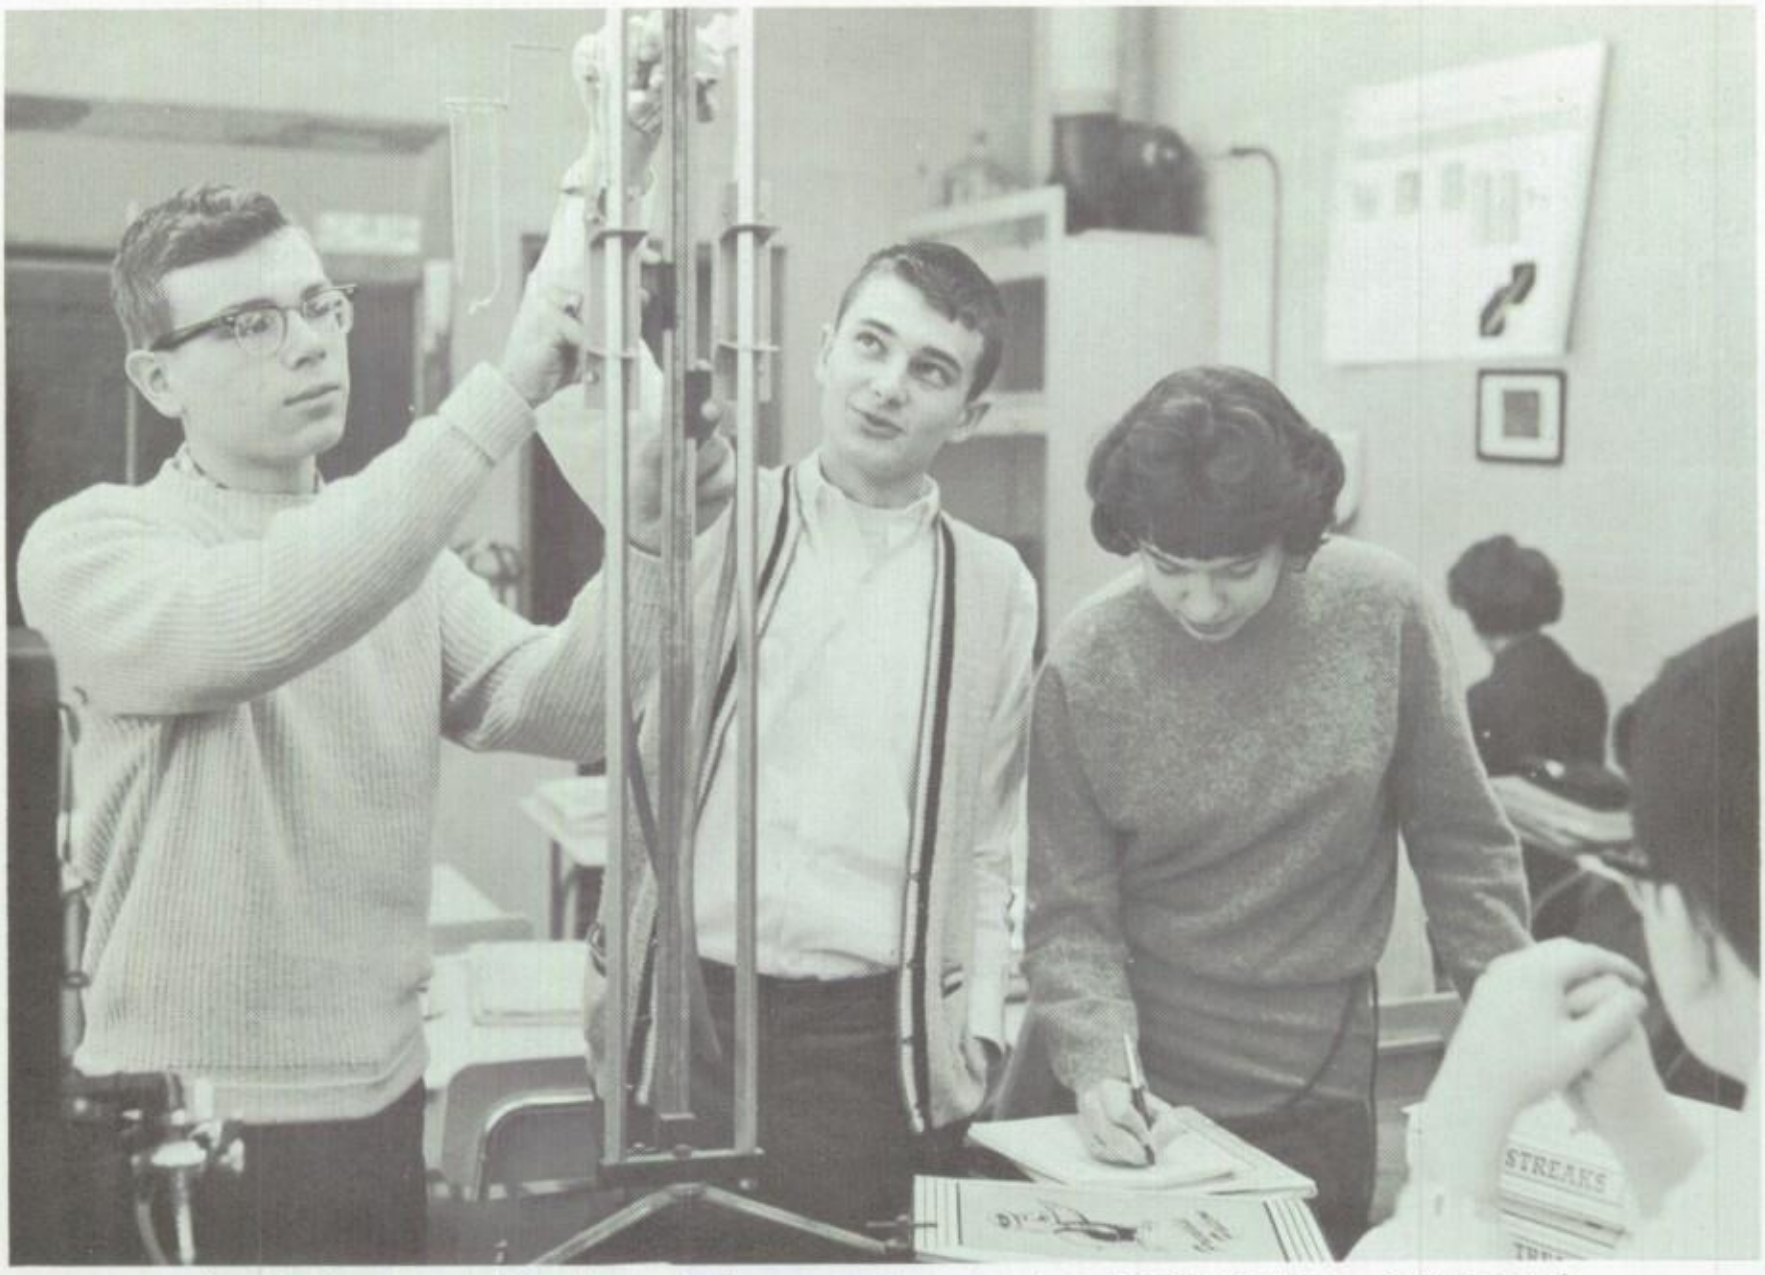
Who says the Russians are ahead of us? Not with general science students like these!

Twinkle, twinkle, little starfish. How I wonder how you are, fish! Knowledge is acquired through experience in the biology laboratory.



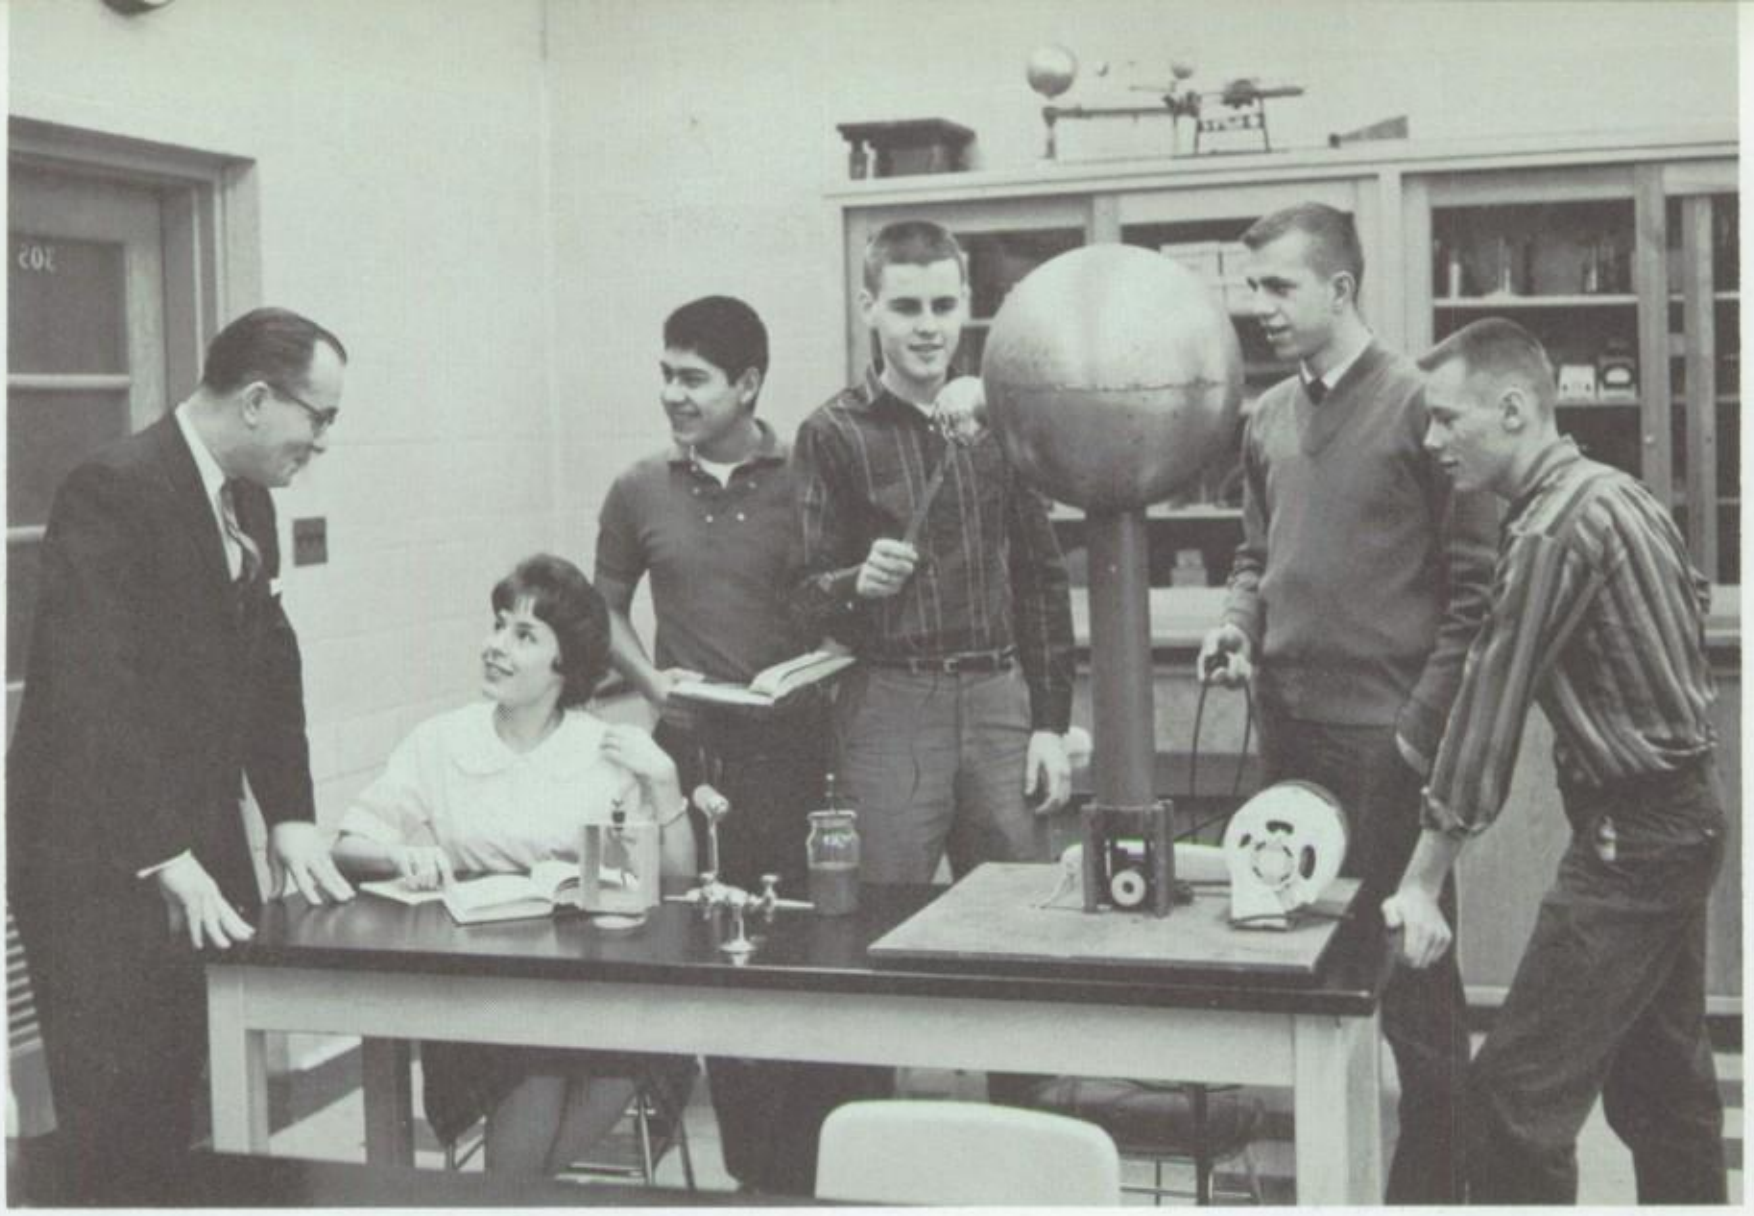
Microscopic wonders of biology seem to captivate these sophomore students. "Think that beanstalk will ever be big enough for Jack to climb, Dennie?"

"What's up, doc?" This appears to be the question traveling around the biology table as the students "operate" on their squid.



Learning how to assemble a barometer in one easy lesson are these chemistry students: Scott Forgatsch, Tony Bakel, and Elaine Denman.

Lab work plus conscientious study plus determination equals success for these eager-for-an-"A" chemistry students.



No, they aren't looking into a crystal ball! Under the expert guidance of Mr. Sneider, the senior physicists bring the principles of the electric generator to life.

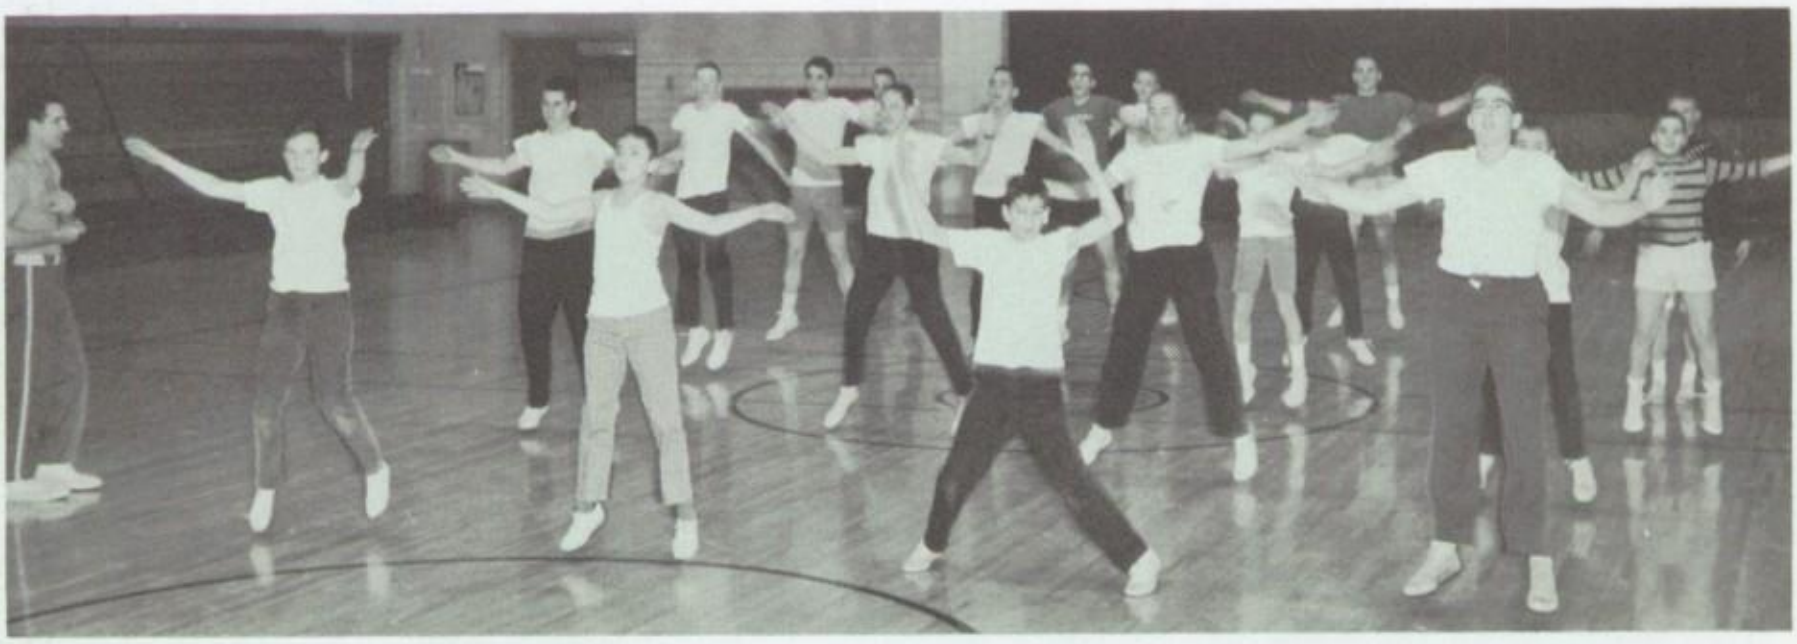
These alert senior physics students seem to be engrossed in this experiment on electrical induction. Did you break something, Dave?

Glee Club

Under the direction of Mr. Robert Darr, the SJH Glee Club put their best voices forward for many delightful sing sessions. Highlighting the year's calendar are the Christmas and spring concerts.

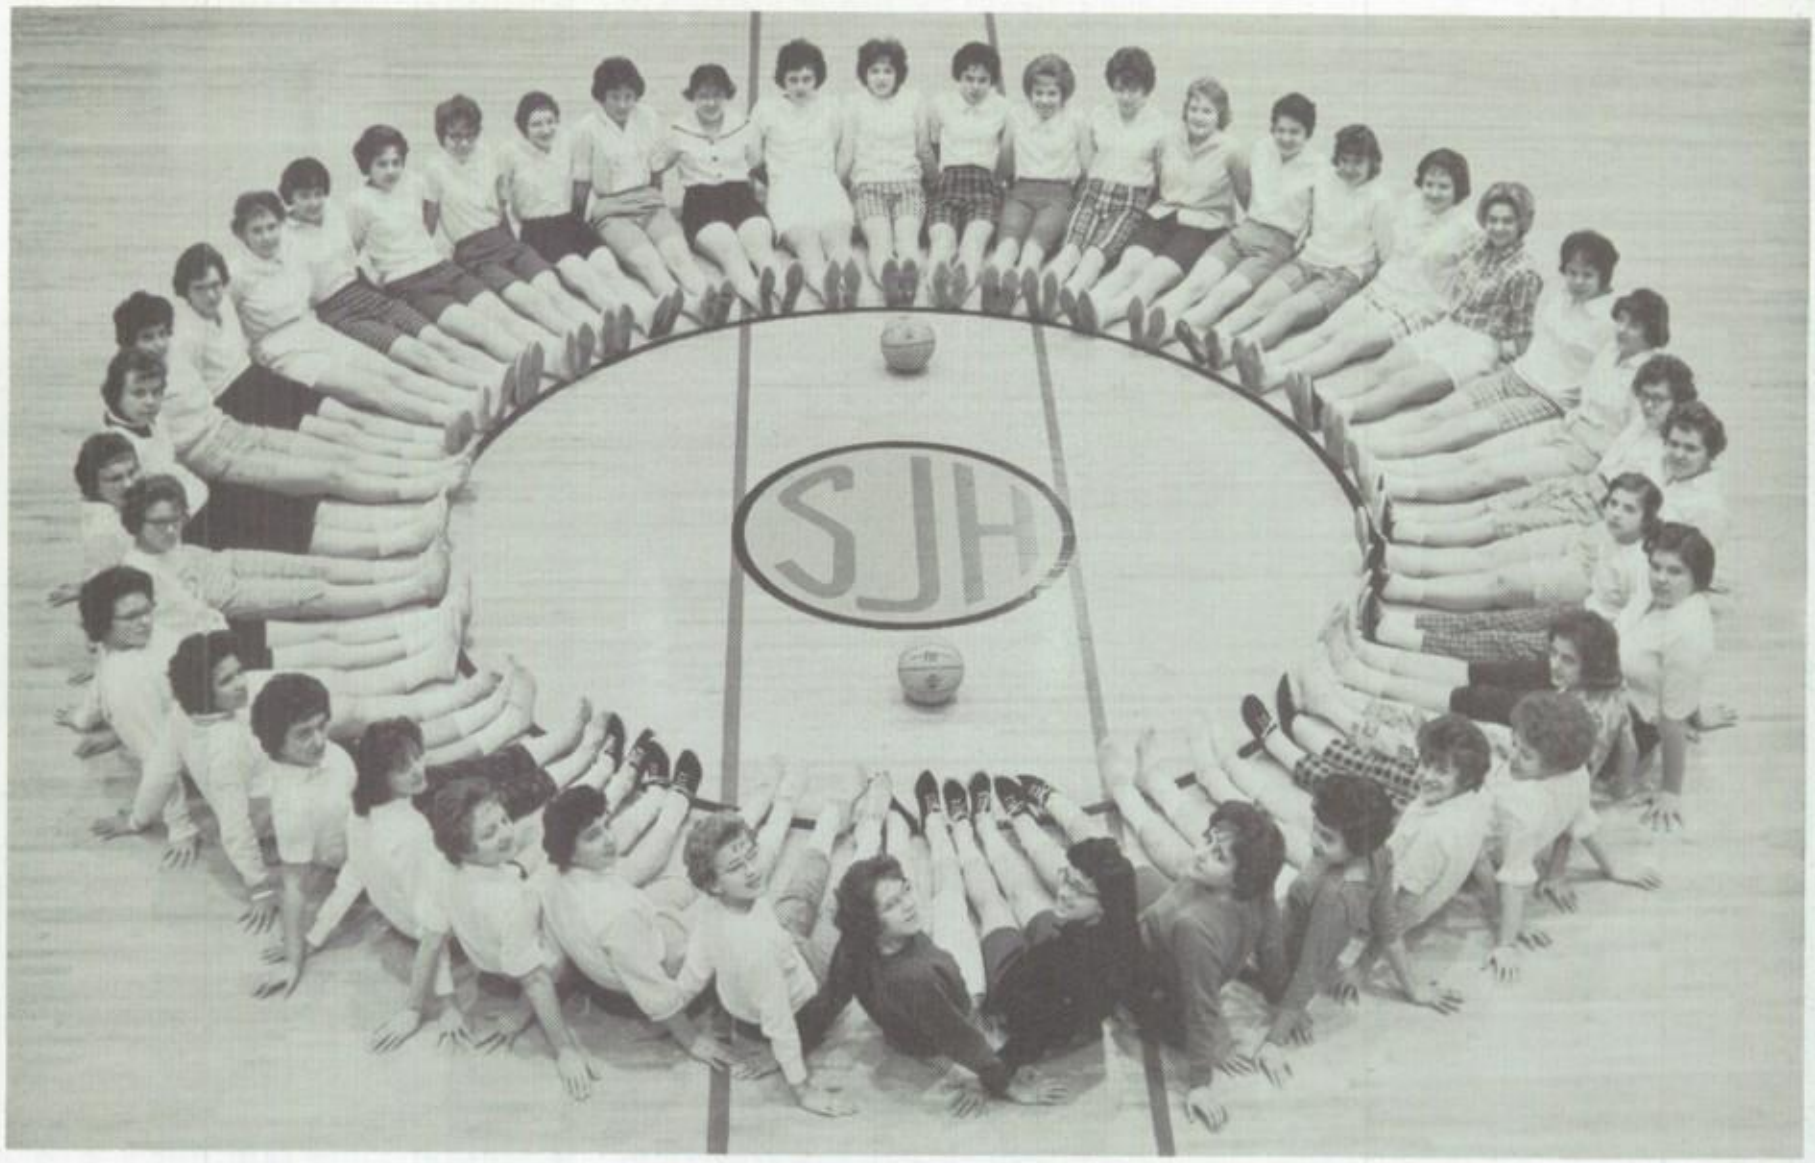
Physical Education

Jack be nimble! Jack be fast! And you won't be last in your jump frog task.



Physical fitness on the SJH front! We're sure President Kennedy would put his stamp of approval on the energetic efforts of these gym students.

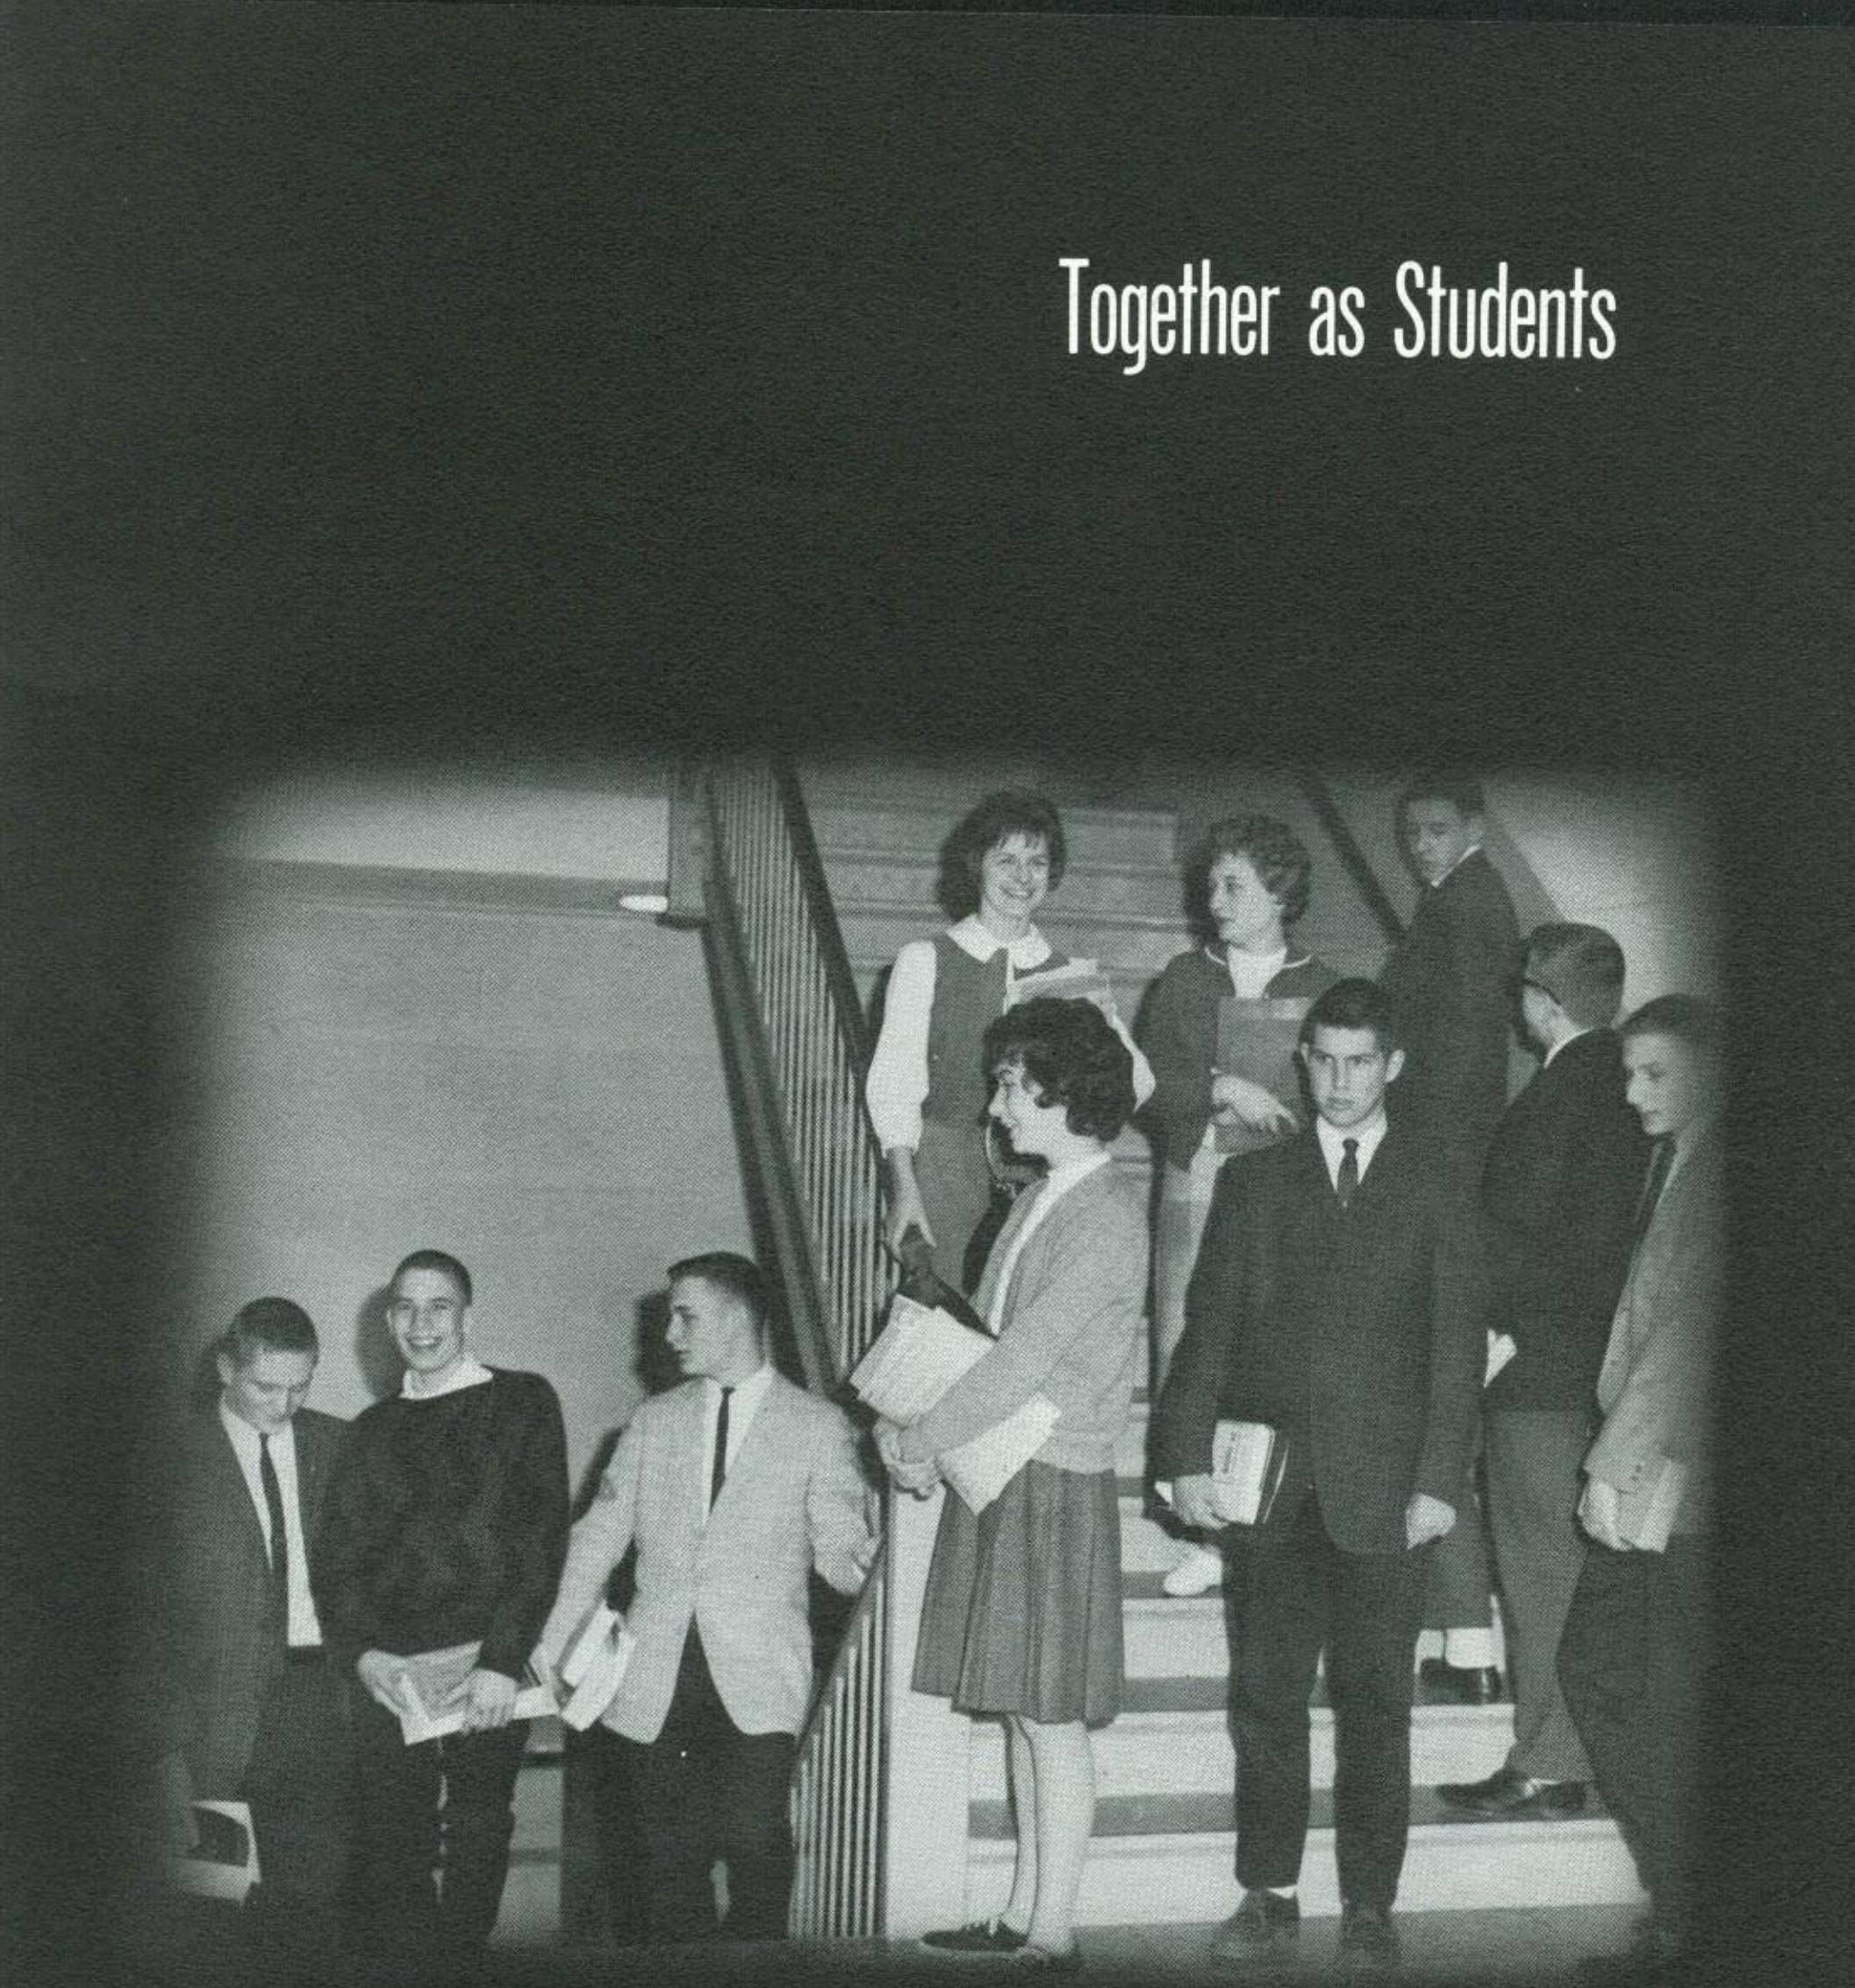
This peppy gym class seems to be knee deep in deep knee bends.



What is this a sit-down strike? Let's get going, 1 - 2. . . . The third period girls' gym class just can't seem to get their feet off the floor in the morning.

If wishes made baskets, SJH would have an A-OK girls' varsity.

Together as Students



Forming pleasant friendships in their daily rush from class to class . . . enjoying the lively chatter in the halls . . . cooperating with the faculty and with one another . . . promoting school spirit, the aim for oneness, helpfulness, and harmony — the students cherish the friendliness and togetherness that sparks SJH school spirit.

Together in Activities

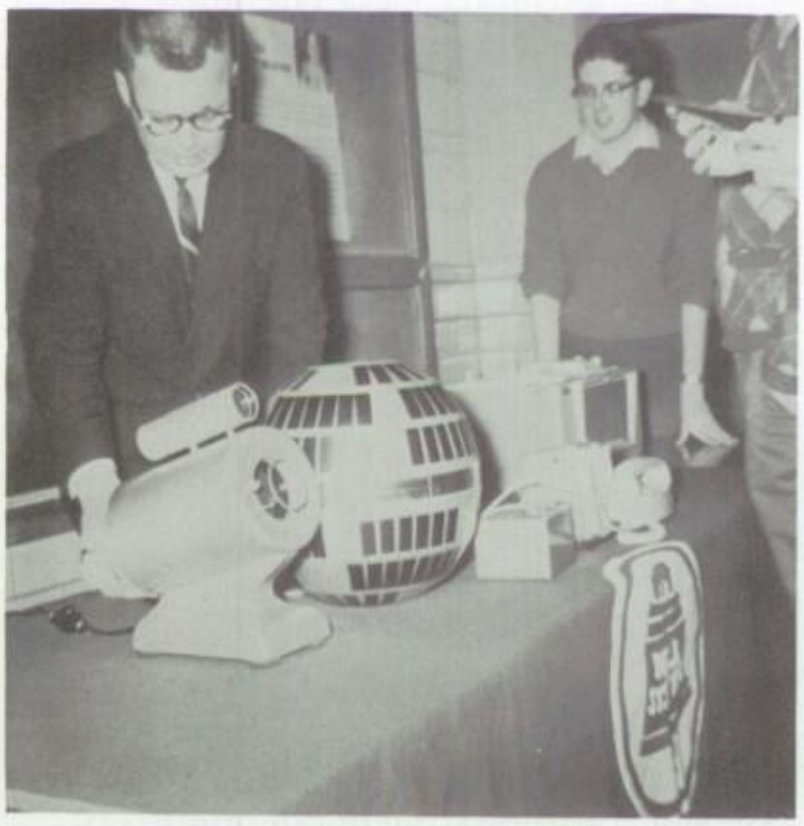
Spicing our school year throughout the seasons are the cheers in the flare of a bonfire . . . hasty Memoraries on the 1-yard line . . . fading streamers of Color Day . . . assemblies, spirited and entertaining . . . fun-filled holiday dances . . . suspenseful minutes before the final buzzer . . . the assuming of responsibilities for Youth Government Day . . . hustle and bustle backstage before curtain time of "The King and I" — these highlight the memories of 1961-1962.

St. Joseph's "Big Four" Student Council officers: Absorbed in discussing up and coming events are Stephen Kupka, president; Kathleen Widman, secretary; Pamela Young, treasurer; and Paul Kledzik, treasurer.

"Gruesome Twosome"

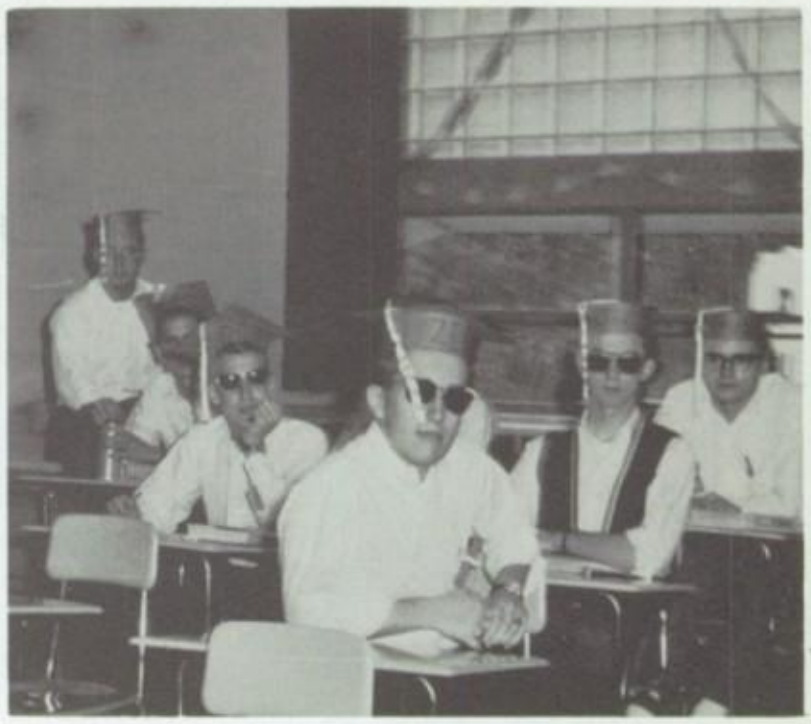
From the excitement and suspense of drawing names to the gay masquerade of the fun-filled evening, SJH'ers enter fully into the Halloween mood.

St. Joseph's Key Club Board of Directors proudly display their newly acquired banner. Left to right are Gary Logsdon, secretary; Patrick Riley, senior director; Russell Gabel, sophomore director; Randall Smith, treasurer; Philip Daubel, junior director; David Daubel, president; Robert Swint, vice-president.



Demonstrating technical achievements of the Ohio Bell System is J. Robert Park, Assistant Traffic Engineer of the Findlay District of Ohio Bell Telephone Company.

Washing windows is one of the services performed throughout the year by the SJH Key Club. Joe Luc, Fred Rectenwald, and Phil Daubel lend a willing hand to the task.



Color Day

Colorful costumes and decorations together with a spirited assembly all add up to the topsy-turvydom of a fun-packed Color Day.

Smiling their approval are Queen Marcia Siler and King Isbel Gonzales as they begin their reign over "Rhapsody in Gold."

"Rhapsody in Gold"

Flanking the steps to their Majesties, King Isbel Gonzales and Queen Marcia Siler, are members of the royal court: (left to right) Loretta Lochotzki and David Young, Kathleen Widman and Richard Esker, Carole Moody and Joseph Luc, Pamela Maier and Walter Oxley.

From the looks of the crowded dance floor, everyone seems to be enjoying himself at the annual football dance.

"Christmas in Candyland"

Half the fun of having a dance is the decorating! The seniors of '62 merrily struggled with trees, candy canes, and ribbons to transform the cafeteria into "Christmas in Candyland."

Round and round they go, enjoying every gay moment of this night of fun.

Providing tuneful selections for "Christmas in Candyland" was Morry Watters Quartet. (That's our own Steve Kupka at the bass.)

One of the bright spots of the evening was the "sing along" session led by Randy Smith.

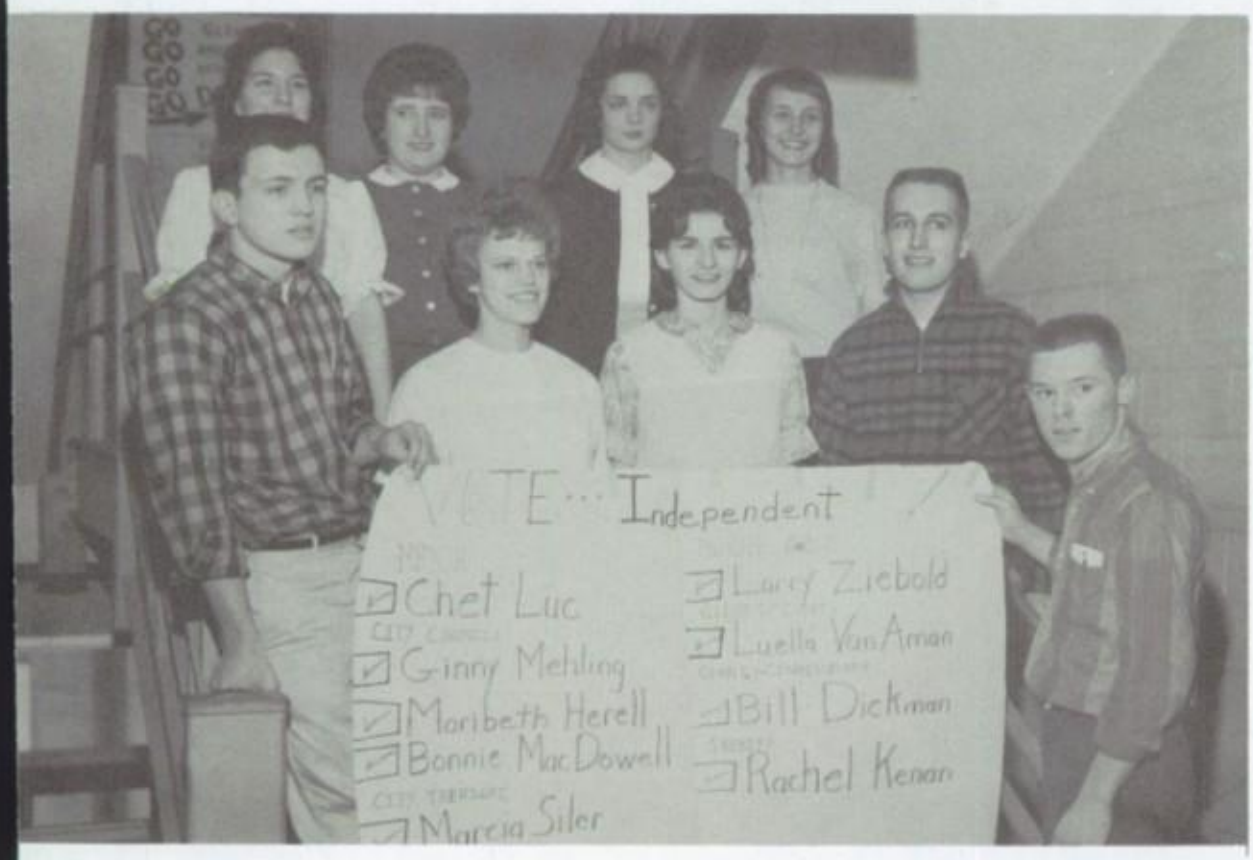
Talent Show

It was a "reely big shoo!" The renowned Mr. Sullivan couldn't hace rounded up a program with better talent than that which graced the SJH stage for the annual Student Council Talent Show. Ranging from folk singers to a string band from ancient Rome, the acts brought bursts of laughter and appreciative applause.

Judged first-place winners were Jane Mayle, Jerilyn Hemstreet, Patricia Shiets, Judith Lauer, and Florence Babione in "The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter." Second-prize winner was Judith Fisher with an organ medley, "The Sounds of Music." Winning third prize were Nancy Fisher and Joan Ziebold with a pantomime, "I Like the Wide Open Spaces."

Youth Government

These Democratic candidates pause for a last-minute check of their party platform before they begin their "Campaign for Votes."



Tossing their hats into the ring, these Independent candidates try their hand at politics while campaigning for Youth Government Day.

Taking time out from the job of displaying their mascot "in poster form" are these hopeful Republican candidates.

Mike, the remarkable marksman! Guarding his trophies on display in the showcase, Michael Bundschuh poses with the rifle that helped him to win them.

Winners

Top sellers James Kiser, Daniel Minnich, and David Hoffman congratulate one another on their outstanding salesmanship in the annual magazine campaign.

These literary seniors parade certificates received for publication of their essays and poetry in National Anthologies.

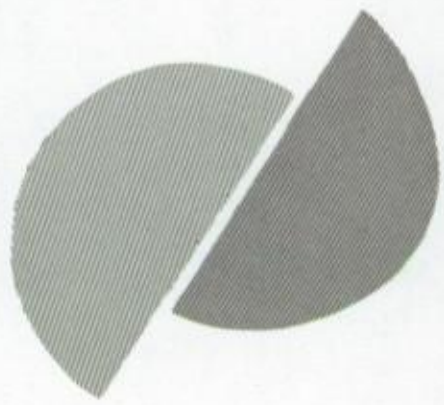
King

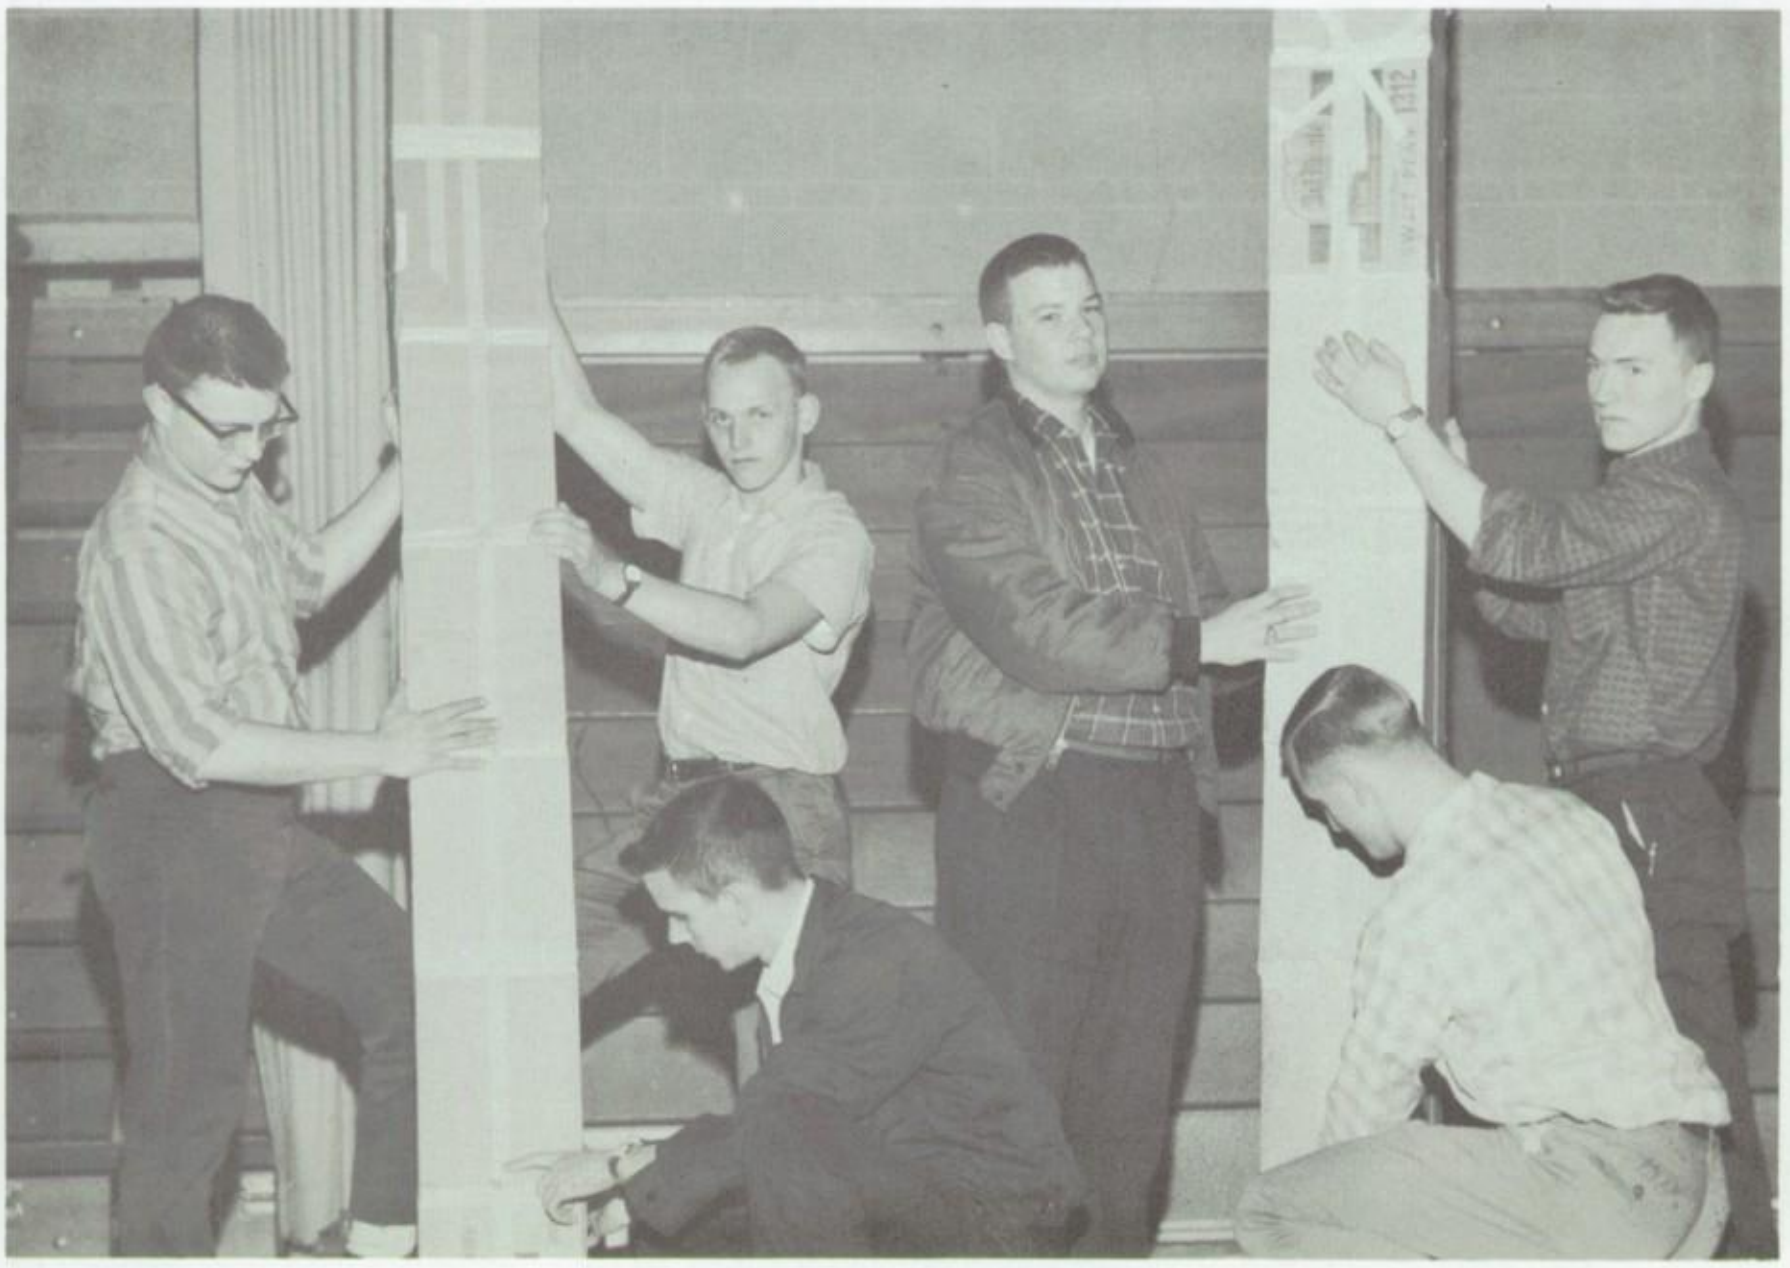
With the artistry of Christian Dior, Mrs. Sneider styled costumes that looked like a million but in reality fitted our limited budget.

Rita Ybarra and Mary Beth Herrel flash pleased smiles as they browse through the colorful costumes that will add that "special touch" to the presentation of THE KING AND I.

Palm trees and clouds fashioned by nimble fingers promise to add a touch of the Orient to our production.



Our corps of "backstage engineers" exhibit ingenuity in turning a conglomeration of cardboard boxes into stately and light-weight pillars.



Under the direction of Mr. Louis Burkett, these senior girls run through a portion of their musical narration. The senior class is deeply grateful to Mr. Burkett for his generous disposal of time and talent in making THE KING AND I a success.

Charles Fisher as the Prince and Isbel Gonzales as Lun rehearse lines and accompanying actions while getting the feel of their unfamiliar Siamese costumes.

Marking her eighteenth year in senior class play production, Mrs. Sneider consistently exceeds her previous years' offerings and comes up with a "better than ever before" production. For her stellar direction, the class of 1962 presents Mrs. Sneider an honorary "Oscar."

Attendance at a yearbook workshop at the University of Detroit furnished the JOSEMONT staff with a competent editorial crew: Sherril VanNatta, Virginia Mehling, Susan Powers, and Mary Beth Herrel.

After hours of planning, measuring, trimming, and writing copy, the persevering staffers do the paste-up to speed the completed layout sheets to the printer.

Josemont Staff

Making a flying dash to the JOSEMONT office, these eager-to-work staff members contribute their time and ideas to the successful publication of the 1962 yearbook.

Already in February the annual staff gets an early note of encouragement when the 1962 cover of the JOSEMONT arrives. Staffers enjoyed keeping the top secret from the student body until circulation time.

It is hard to imagine how these staff members can remain so serious while the underclassmen are getting "cut up and pasted."

All work and no play? Putting together the '62 JOSEMONT required long hours of hard work, but a spark of humor made this work seem lighter.

Proving that words don't always come easy, these JOSEMONT members consult their friends, the dictionary and the thesaurus, in writing copy.

Streaks in Action

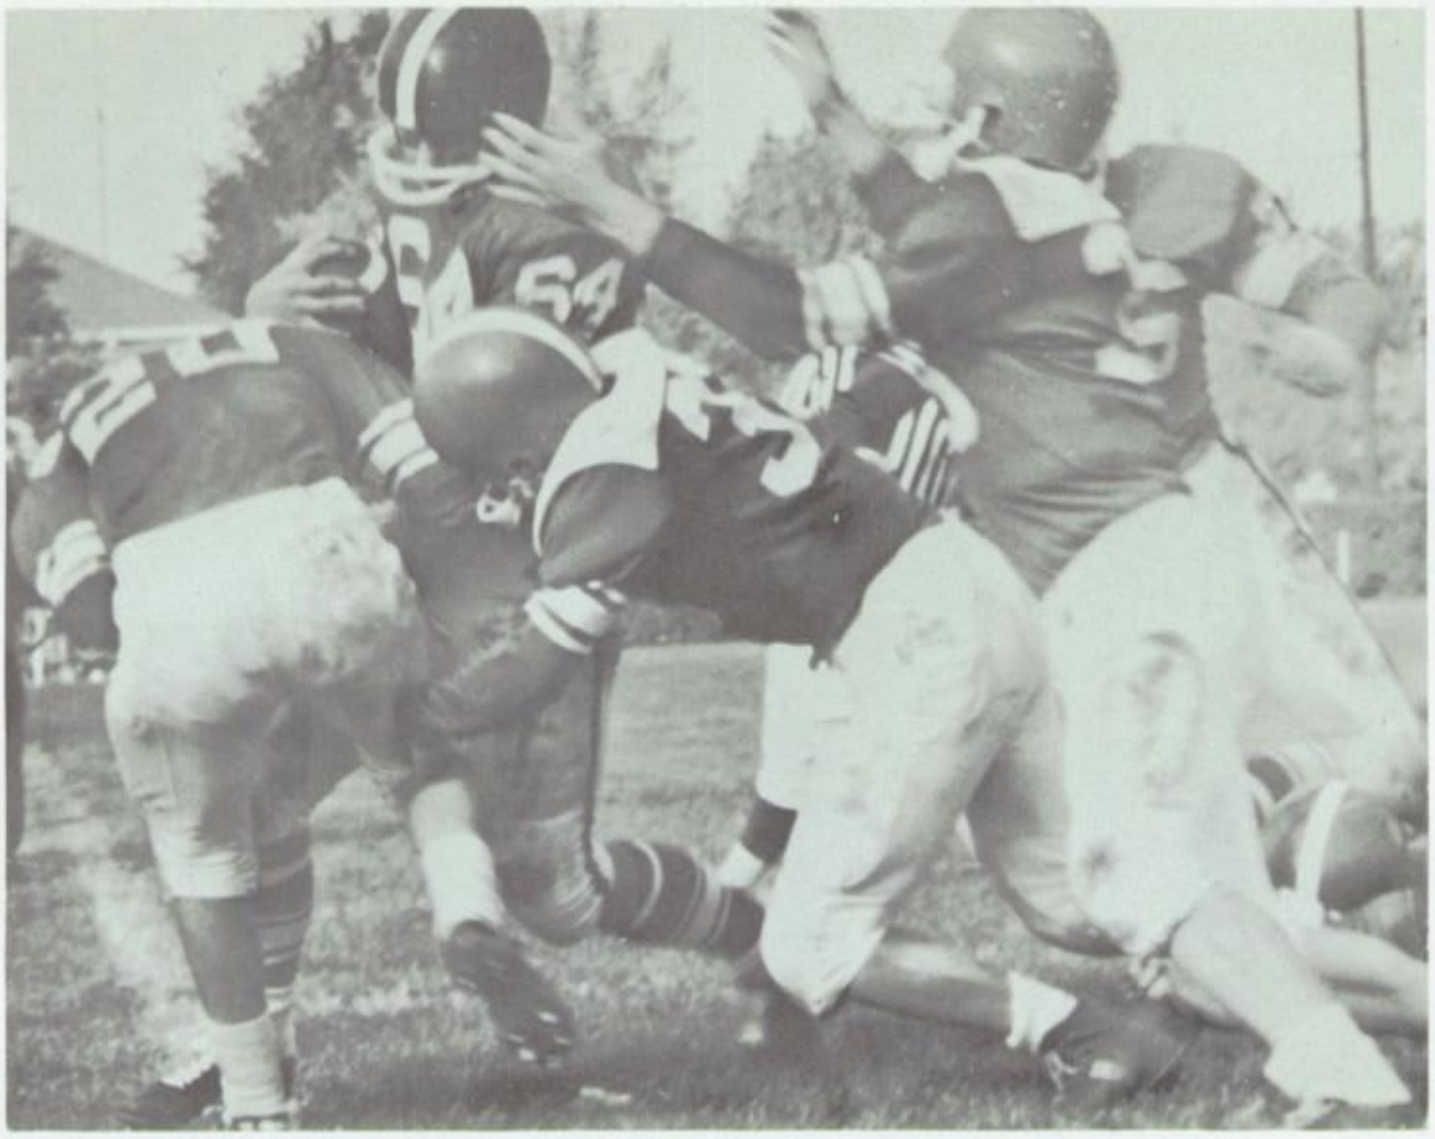
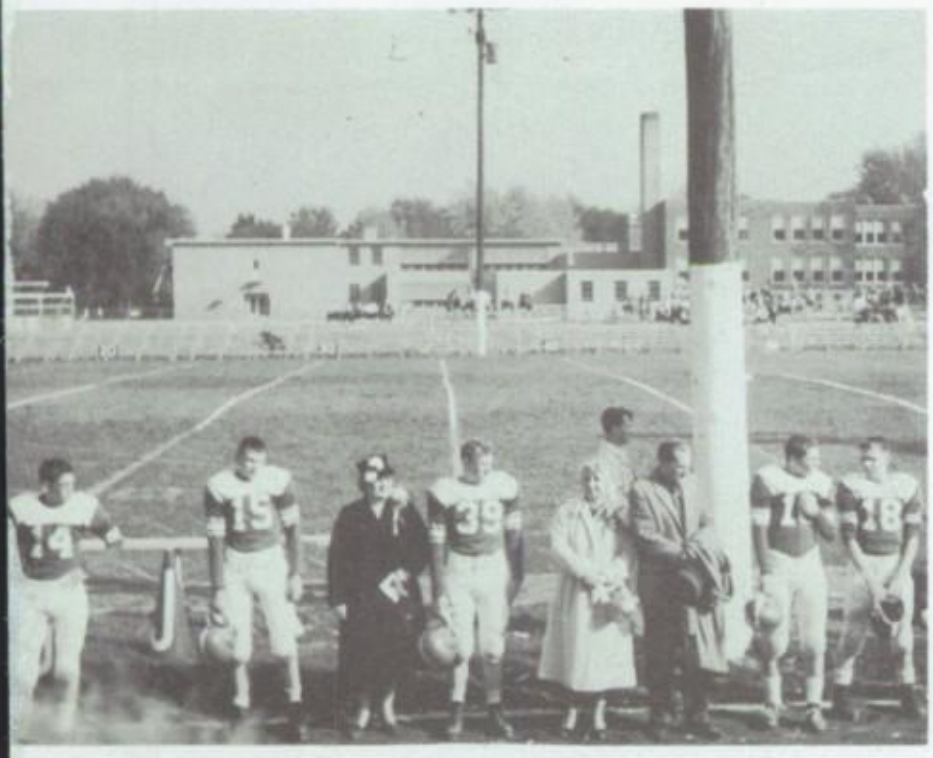
With arms wide open, there seems to be some option on who gets the ball. A second later, Joe Luc, after a little ball talking, pulls in the pigskin for a first down before being trodden under by the Lakota secondary defense.

An end sweep by Joe Luc obtained the needed yardage before the Lakota defensive gets their hands on him from all sides.



Exhibiting fine gang tackling, Ron Kerr, Chet Luc, and Tom Beier smother a Calvert back.



Proud parents pose with their sons before the Calvert game on Mom and Dad's Day.

Waiting for the football caravan to start, these senior girls' smiles anticipate the gridiron victory that will be ours this sunny autumn afternoon.

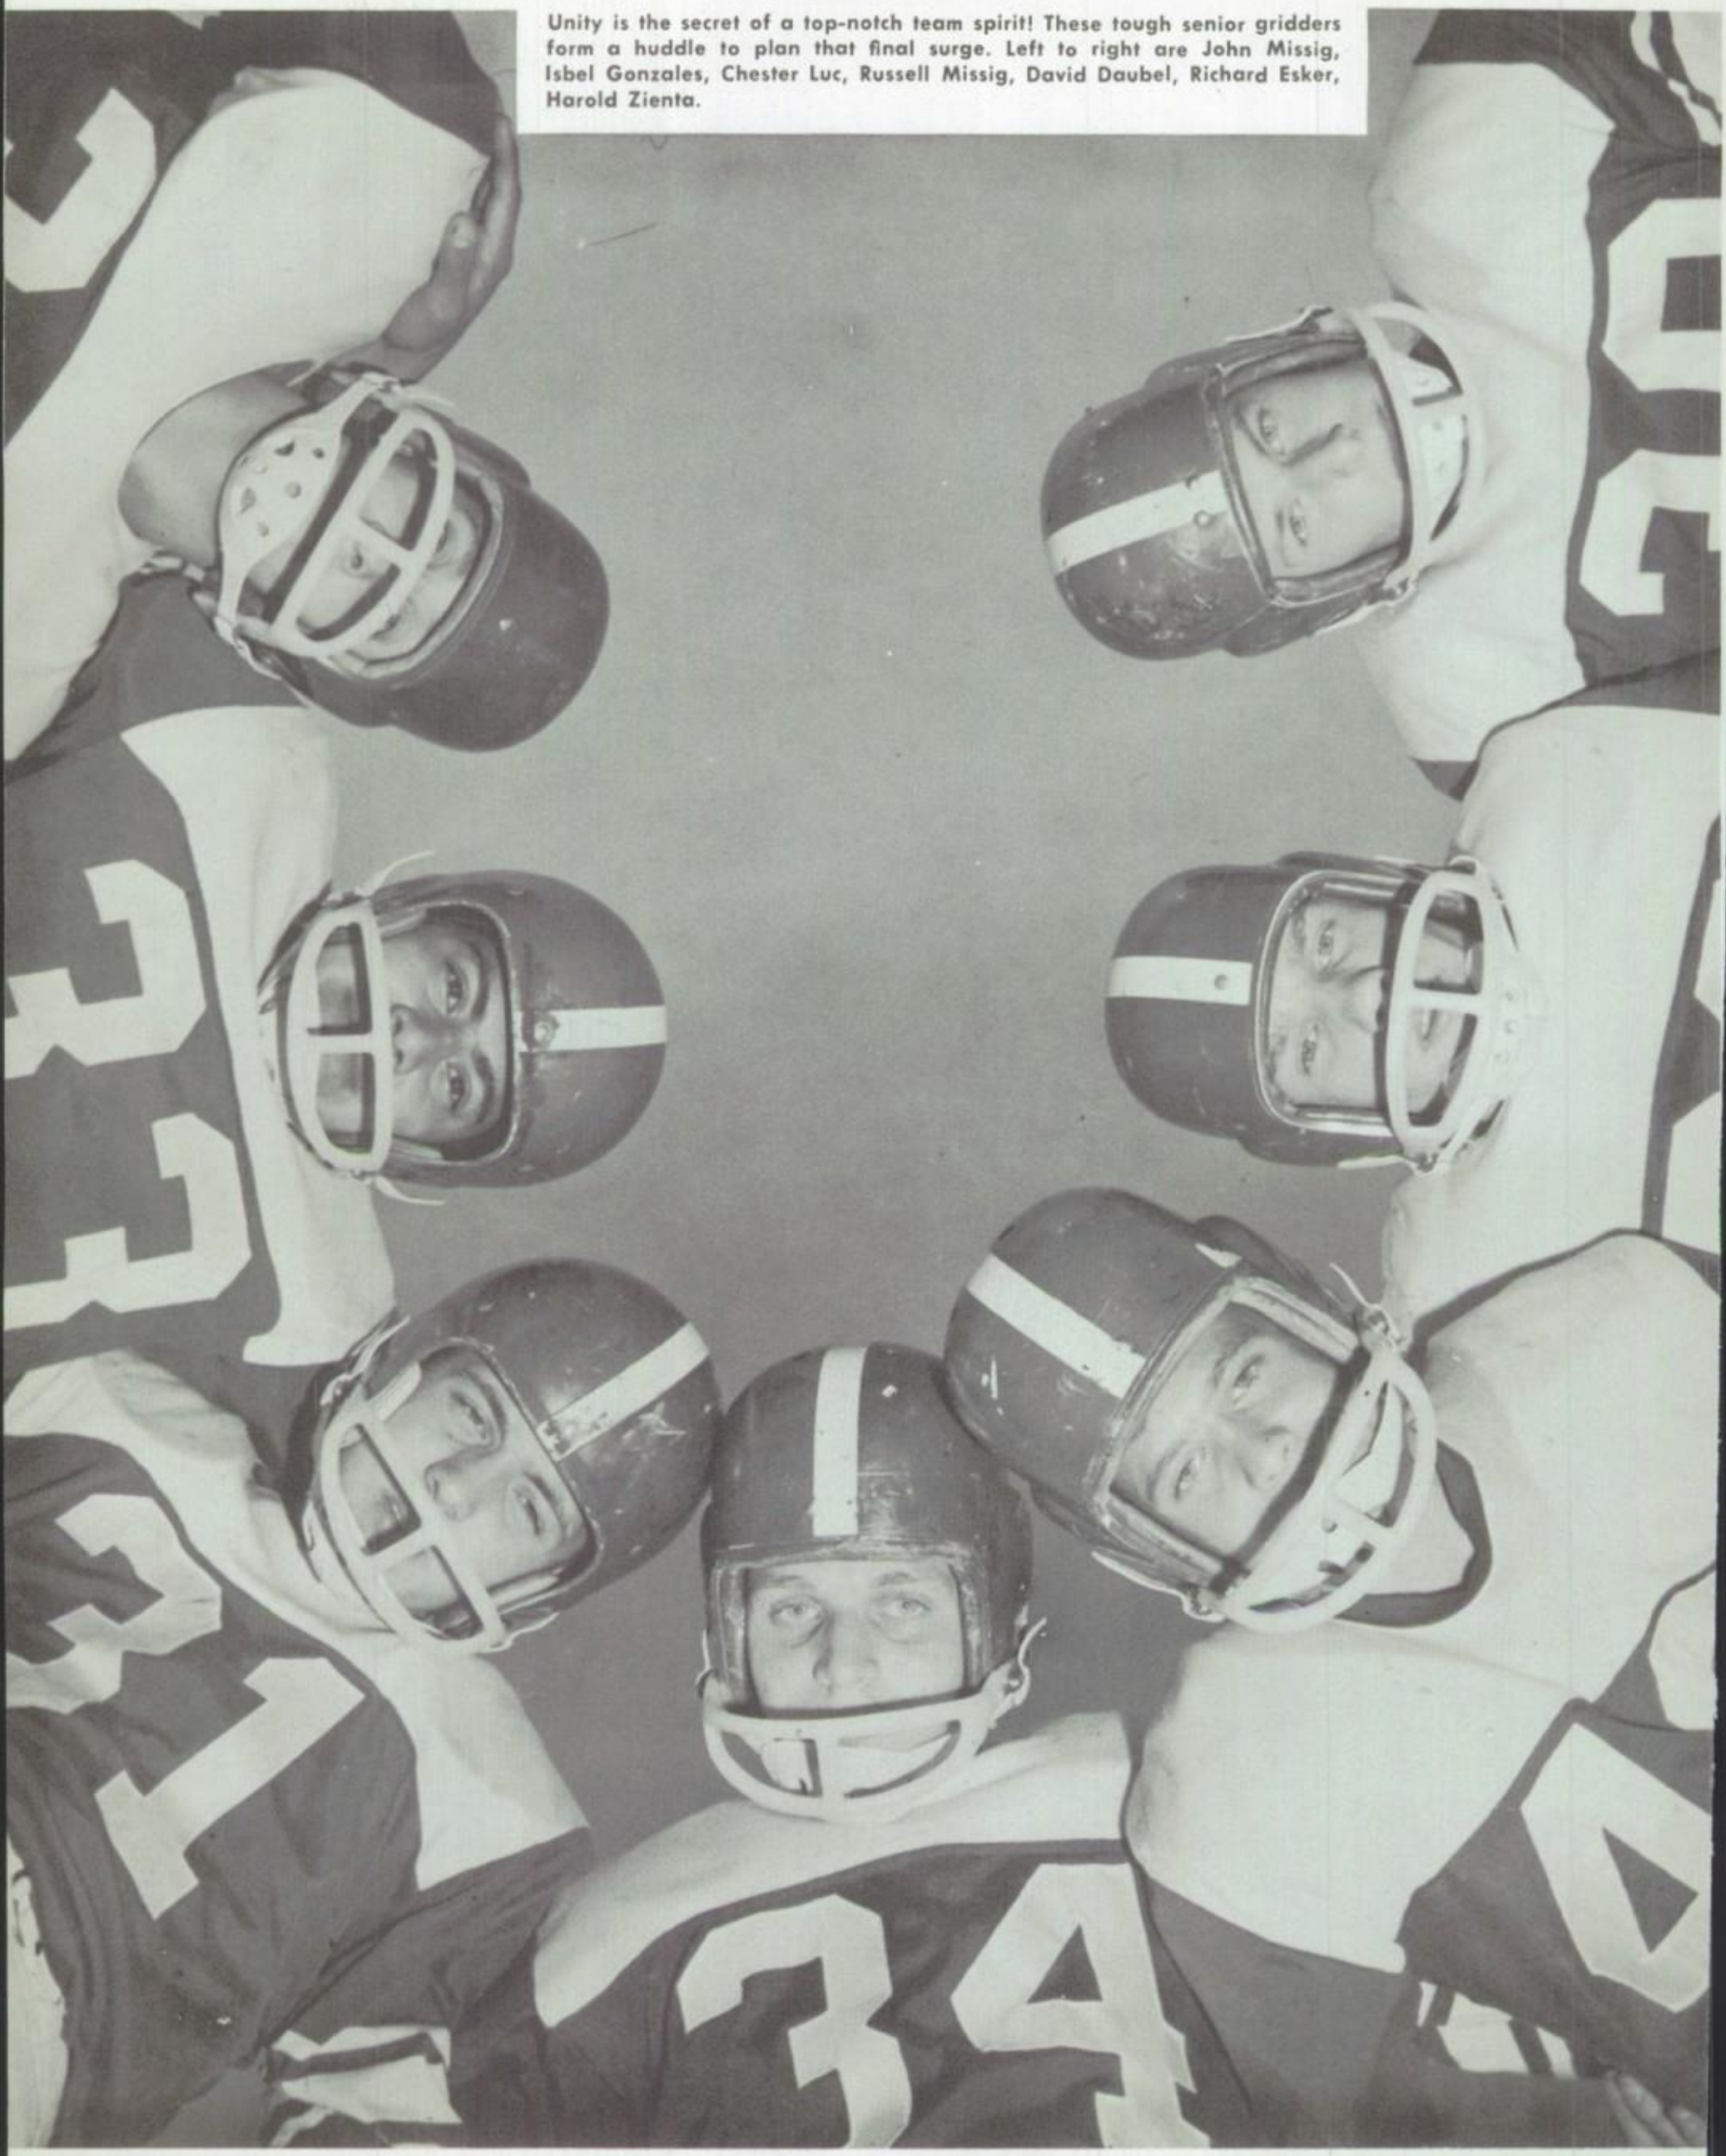
The clock reads 12 min.; the crowd stands and quiets; and the band strikes up the "Star Spangled Banner."

Burn, fire, burn! Sparking up enthusiasm are these SJH'ers as they prepare for the tilt with Tiffin Calvert.

Senior night in the stands! The camera zooms in on the seniors as they cheer at their last game: Lakota, 6 — St. Joe's, 27.

A small portion of our fans! Notice the enthusiastic spirit in cheering our team to victory!

Virginia Mehling and Jeanne Weltin, senior majorettes, seem to be planning a cute routine to delight the eyes of the spectators. Freshman drum major, Jerry Dumminger, sets the pace.



Unity is the secret of a top-notch team spirit! These tough senior gridders form a huddle to plan that final surge. Left to right are John Missig, Isbel Gonzales, Chester Luc, Russell Missig, David Daubel, Richard Esker, Harold Zienta.

Our senior cheerleaders, Marcia Siler and Susan Powers, salute a final good-bye. We were fortunate to have such peppy and spirited leaders.

Something new on the agenda for pep rallies was the presentation of the player-of-the-week award given to the deserving player for outstanding achievement in the previous week's game. Displaying their trophies are (top) Russell Gabel, Ronald Kerr, sophomores; Thomas Beier, junior; David Daubel, senior; (bottom) Michael Kelly, John Swint, juniors.

Players-of-the-Week

"Excellence" is the keynote of all performances given by the SJH majorettes. Displaying winning smiles are (standing) Kay Raubenolt, Cheryl Rhodes, juniors; Hilda Lochotzki, sophomore; (kneeling) Virginia Mehling and Head Majorette Jeanne Weltin, seniors.

Streak Twirlers

SJH Band on parade! With their popular and varied programs, the band entertained at many a half-time performance.

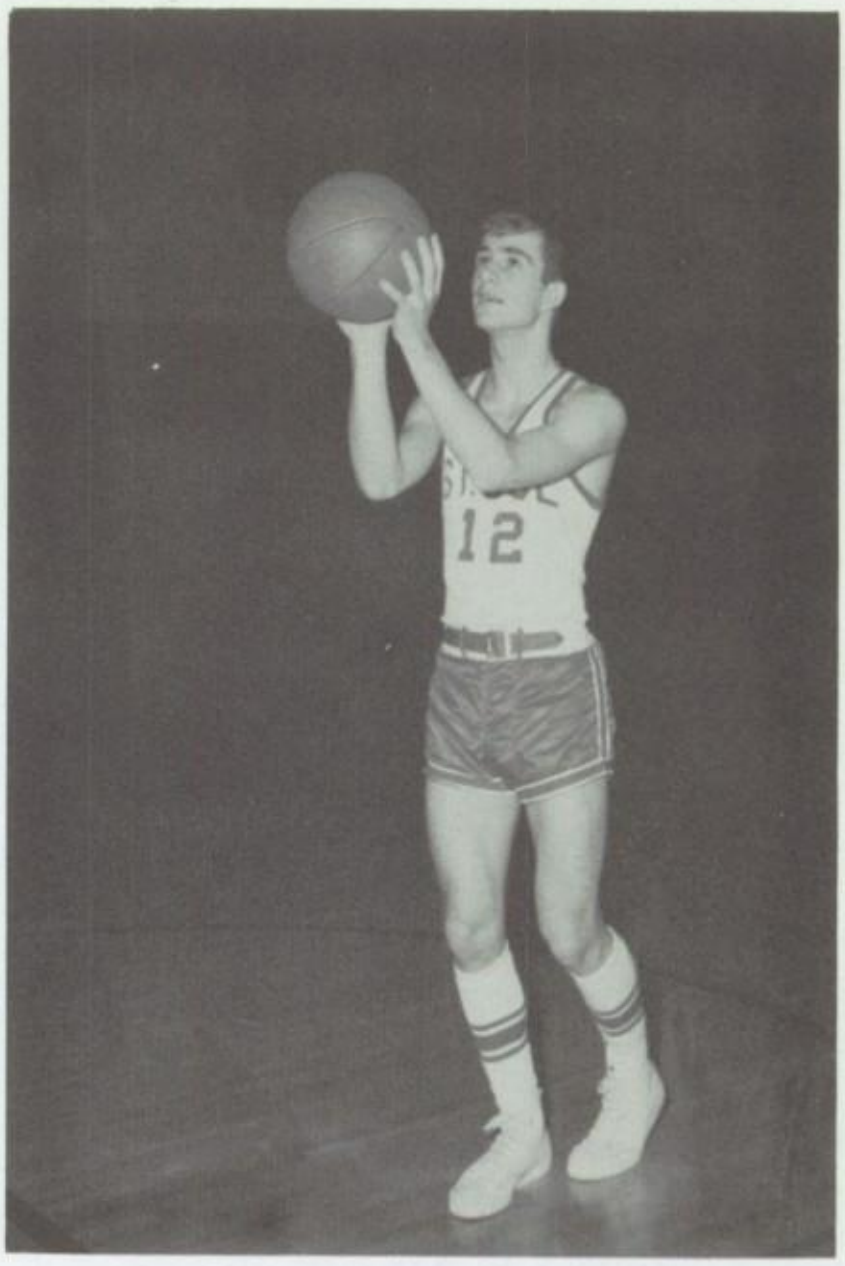
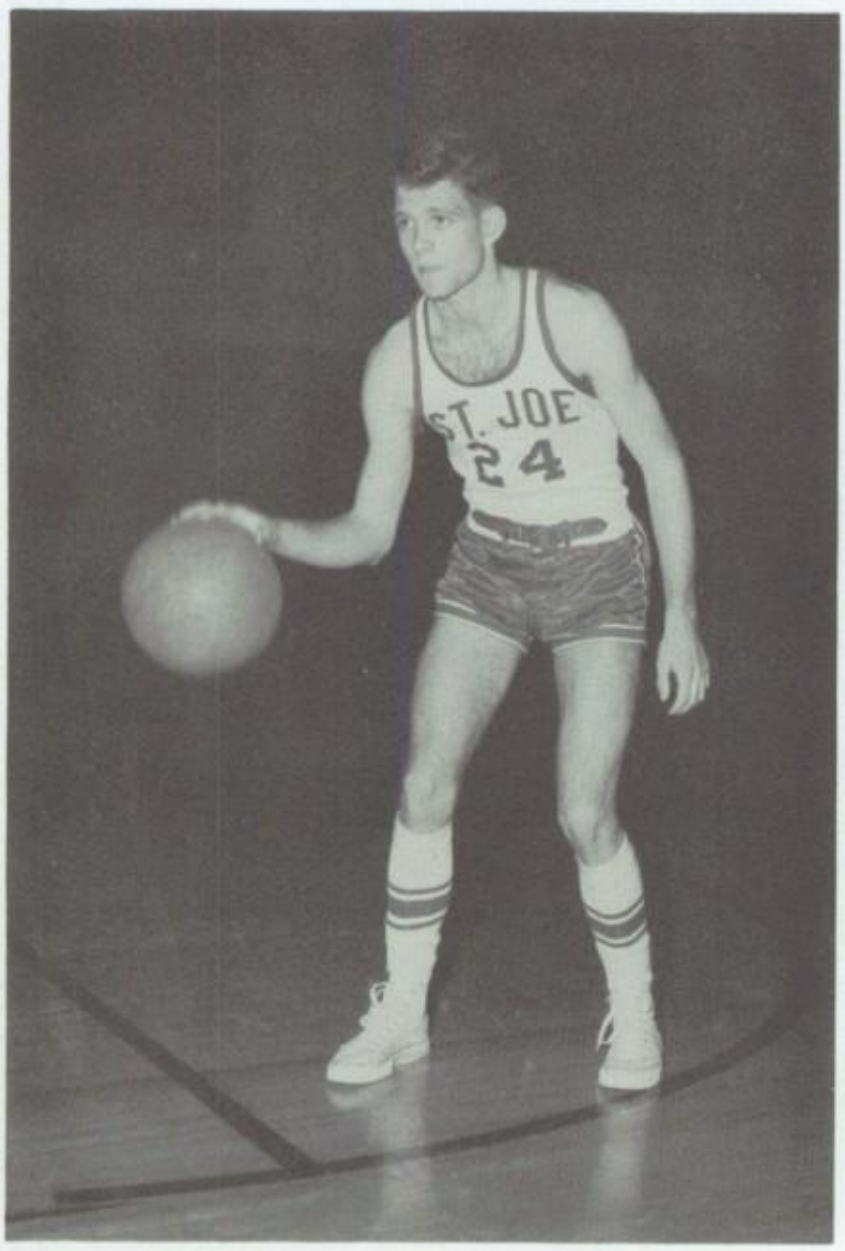
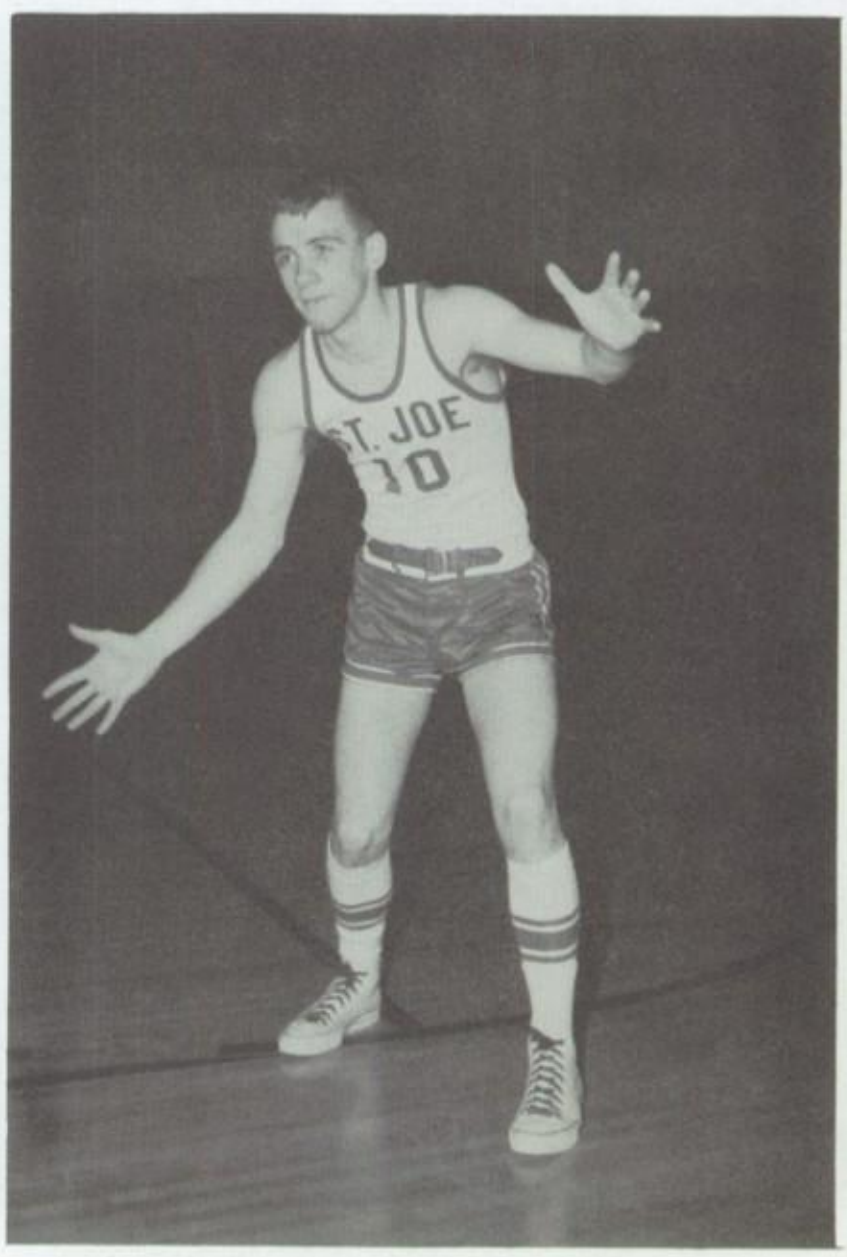
Ronald Eberly — Forward



James Fisher — Guard



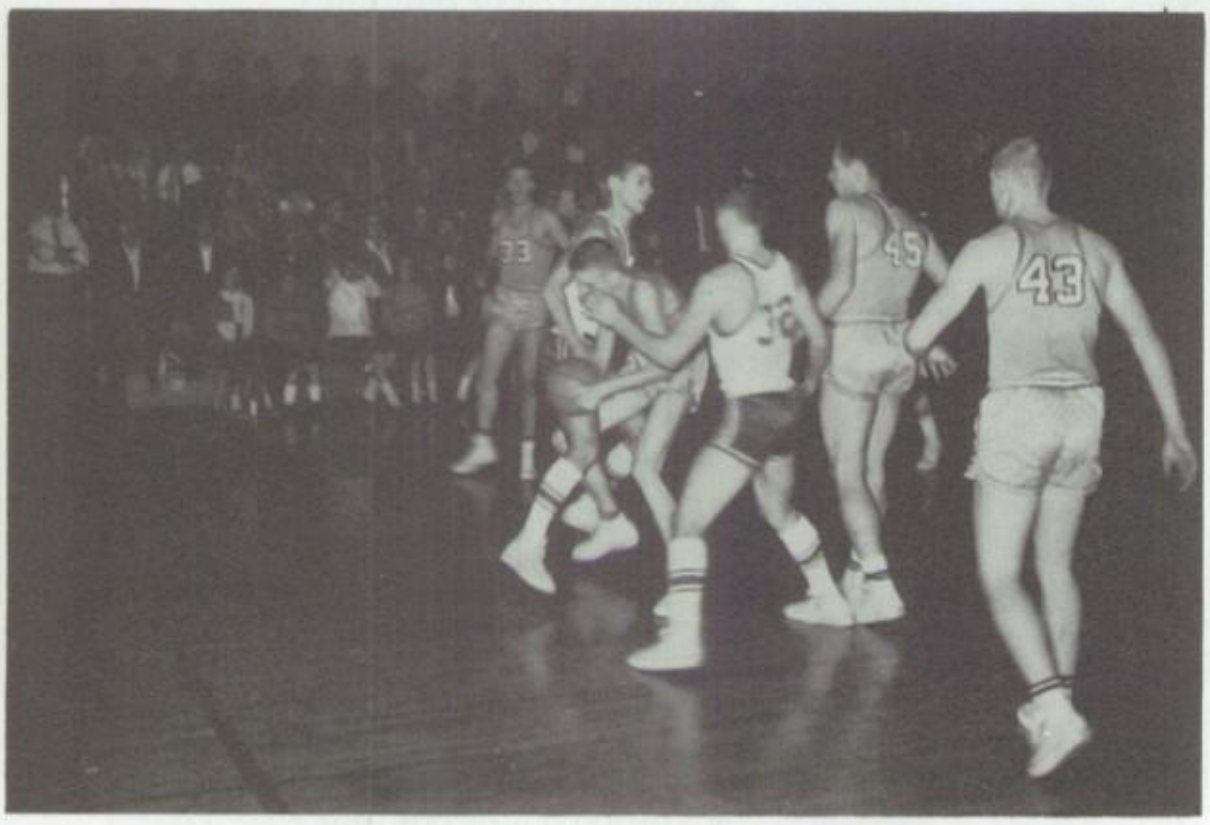
David Daubel — Forward



Thomas Kashmer — Guard

Senior sharpshooter, Tom Kashmer, shows the smooth form and keen concentration that made him a great asset to our basketball team.

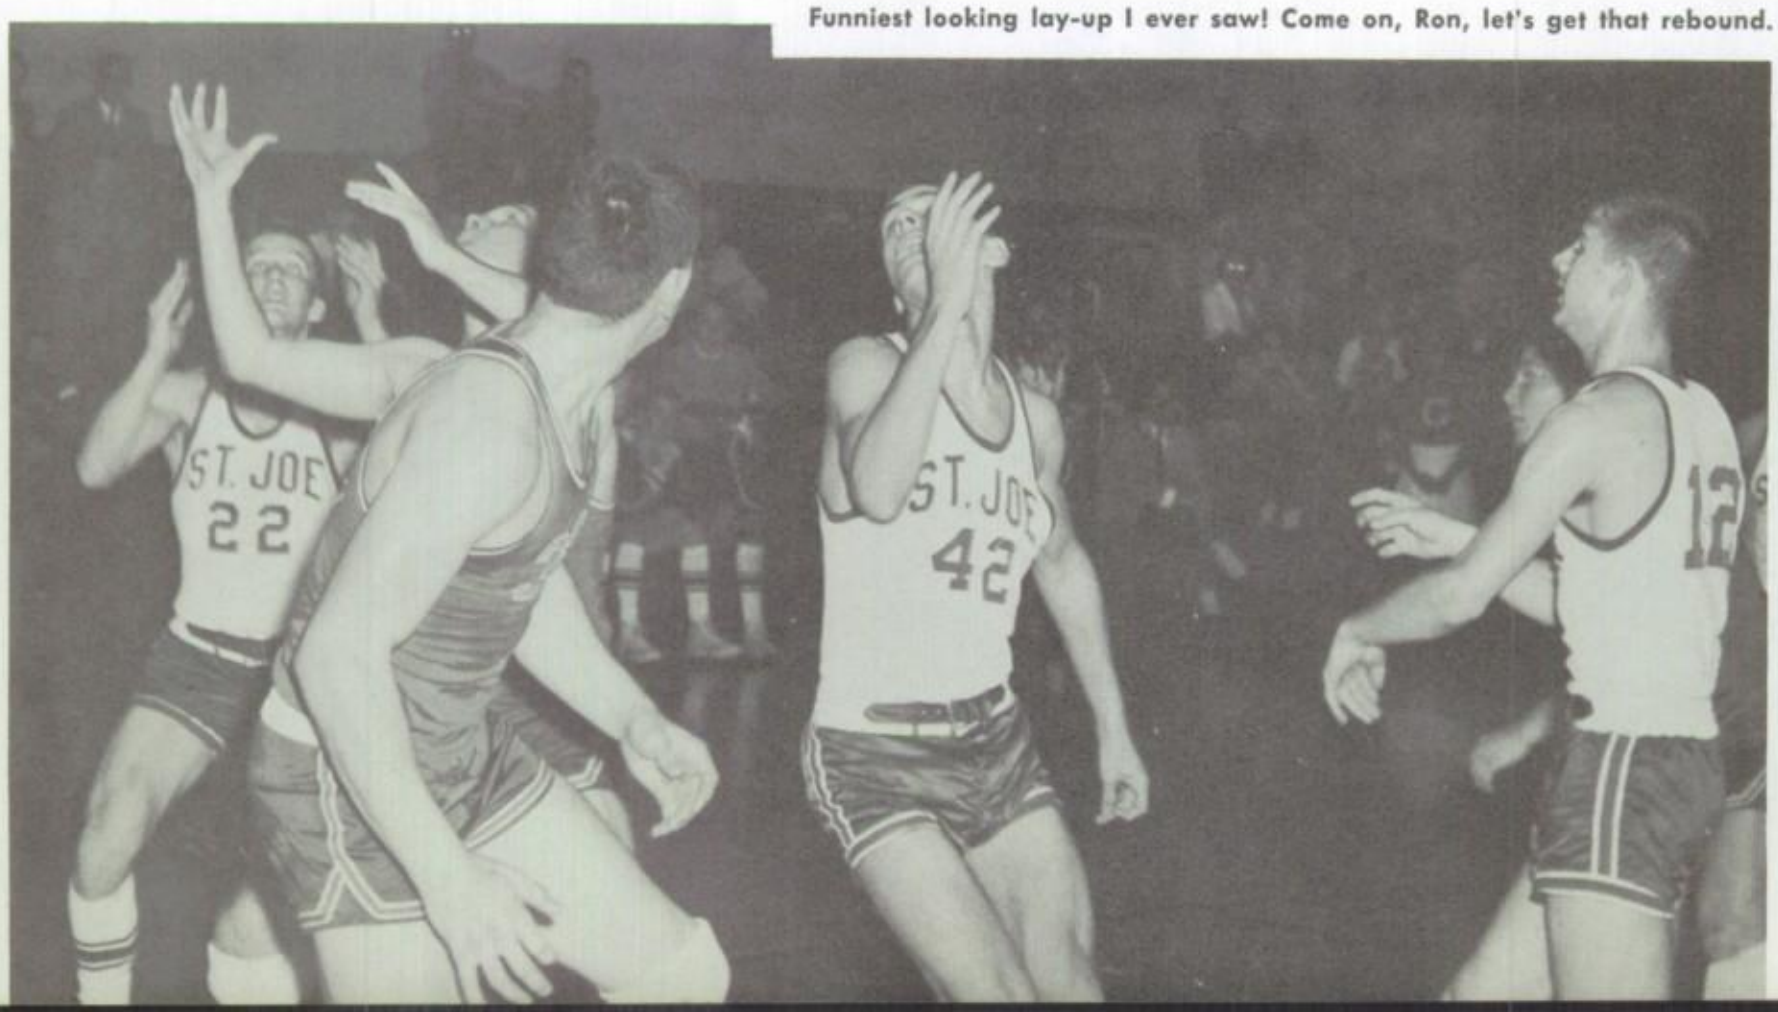
This time the "ref" seems to have missed the mark for the ball seems to be soaring out of reach of the grasping players.



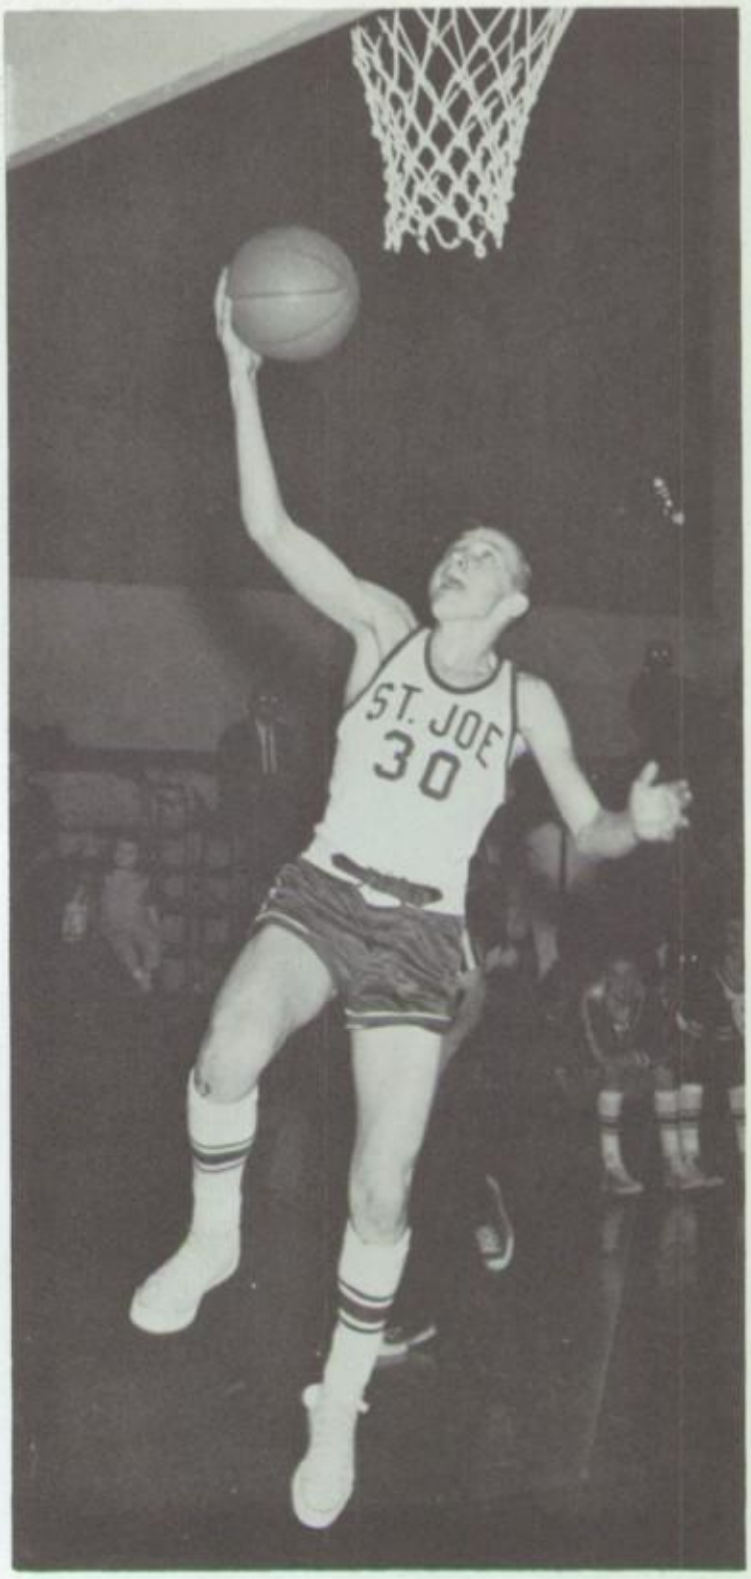
Rick Riccardi stops an old Clyde schoolmate from venturing farther down the court with "knee action personified."

Action on the Hardwood

Funniest looking lay-up I ever saw! Come on, Ron, let's get that rebound.



Putting all muscles and determination into play, Dave Daubel outjumps opponent in a thrilling game against Norwalk, St. Paul.



Youngster Willie Babione is all alone as he lays it up. Let's hope he made it!

Nothing to it seems to be what Ron Eberly is thinking as he watches the ball go through for another charity point.

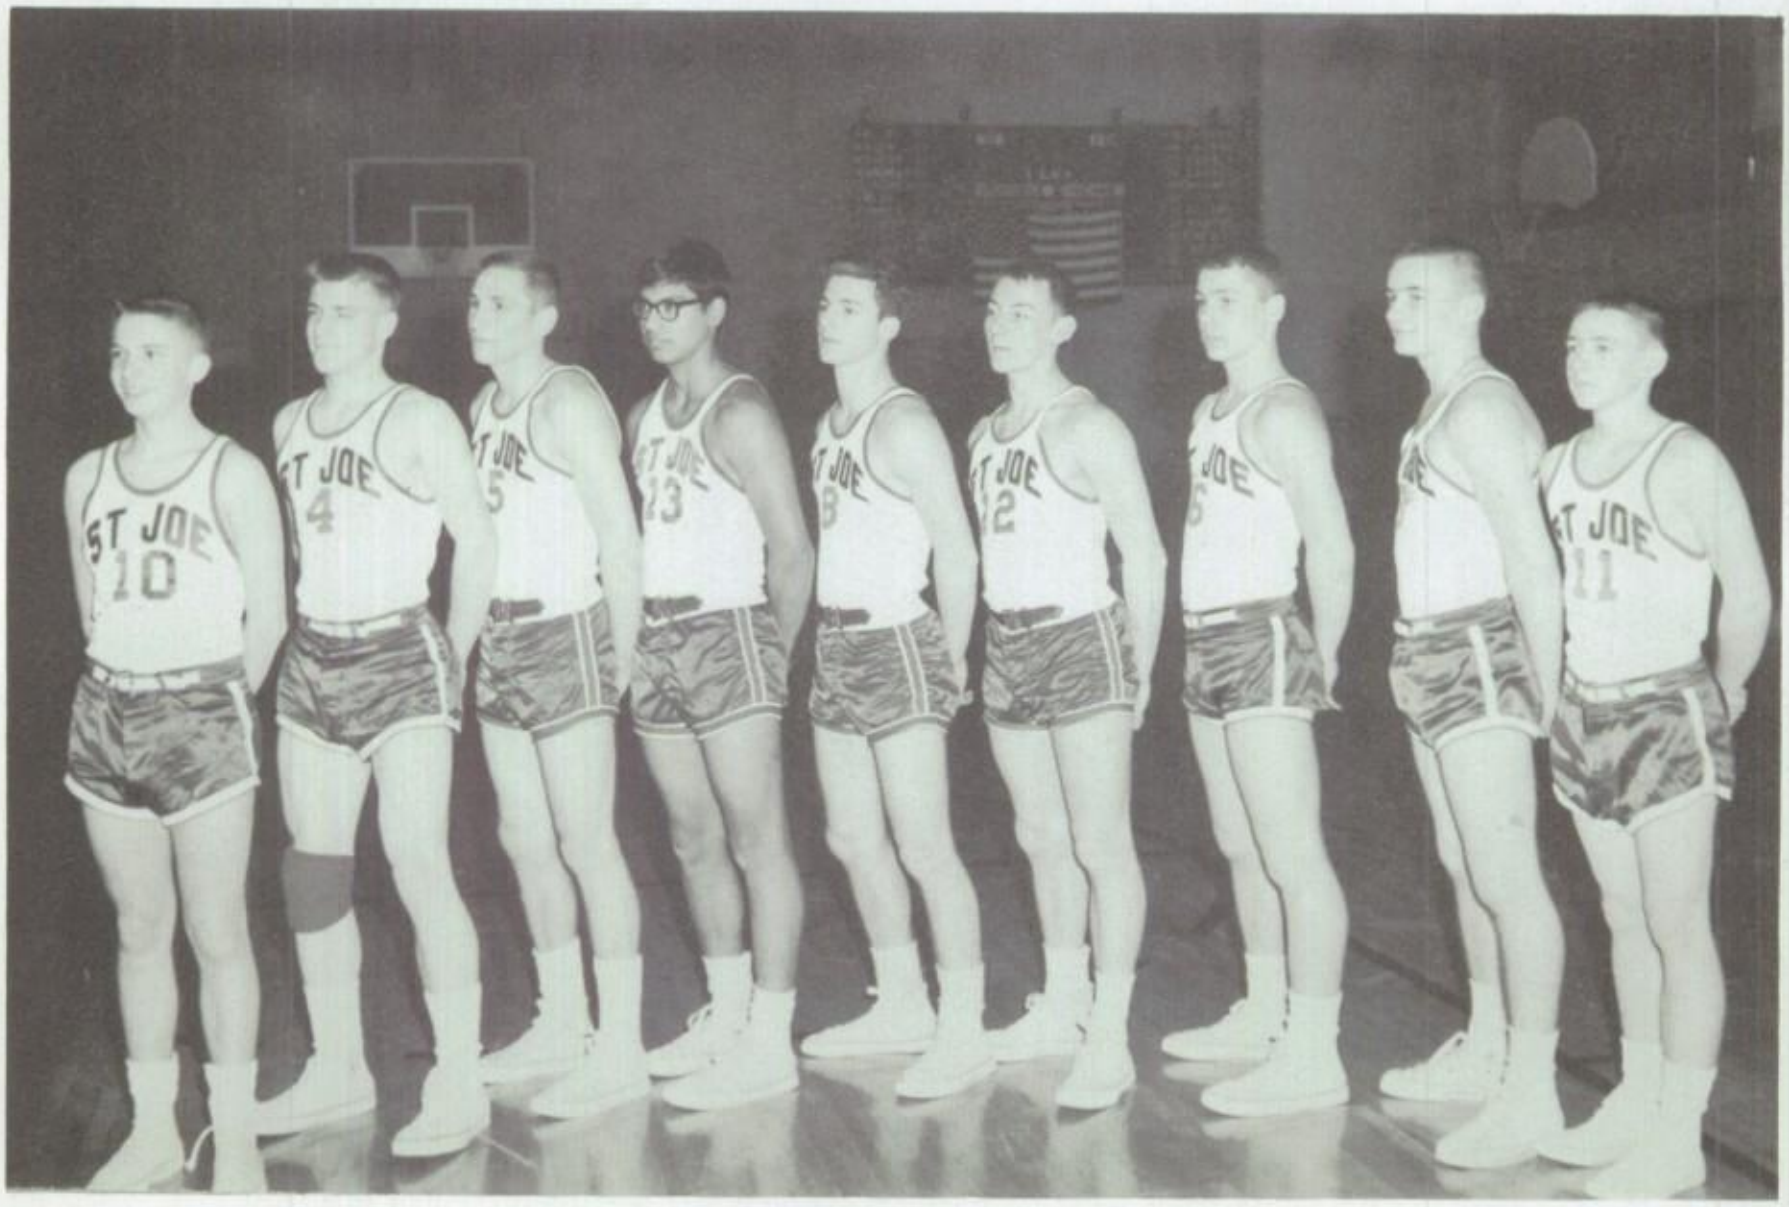
Another two points for jumping, Ron! Notice the calm expression on his face.

Steve Kupka outjumps Norwalk High's center and gives the Streaks that extra margin.

Beier shows pro-like form as he executes a "hooker" from the top of the keg while Riccardi and Eberly move in to pick off the unexpected rebound.

The "Big-O" getting mauled by Dallas Newton, a "trucker" if there ever was one.

Reserves



Taking time out from a heavy practice to pose are the future varsity stars of St. Joe's: Norman Paeth, Gregory Gerber, Ronald Ritzman, Ponciano Gonzales, Ronald Kerr, Russell Gabel, Milton Decker, Tyrone Wonderly, and Lawrence Kashmer.

Grapplers

These intent, muscular young men are the pride of St. Joseph's wrestling team.
Row 1: Gregory Taylor, Robert Koch, Daniel Rich, John Linehan, Frank Norton, Dennis Molyet.

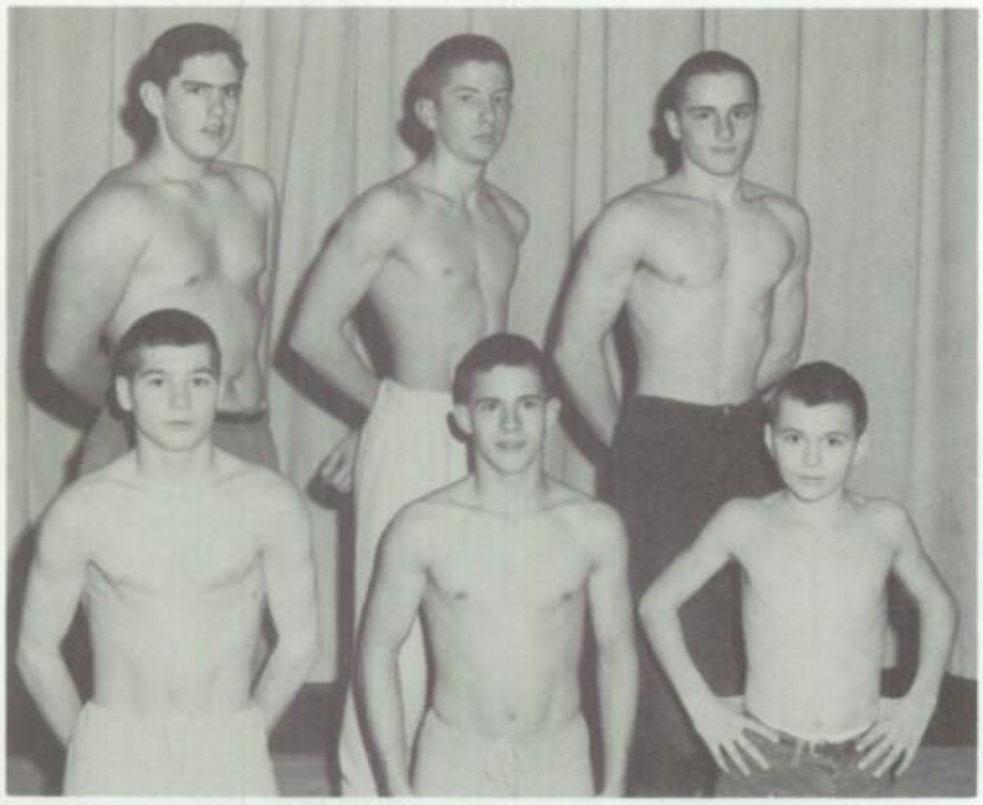
Another senior mat man, Silverio Gonzales, has certainly developed his talents. Here he tried for a pin as Lee Potter battles to escape.

Mike Bundschuh, hard-working senior grappler, contends with Mike Kelly for top position as he sinks in a near half-nelson on his opponent.



The up-and-coming freshman grapplers stand as a warning to the other wrestling teams in our district as a rough and ready group.
Row 1: David Young, Carl Schell, David Smith.
Row 2: Michael Molyet, Herman Kanan, James Szymanowski.
